MORE EVIDENCE UNCOVERED IN LINGLE MURDER

Two Friends of Brothers Arrested During Raid
By Detectives
STATE WINS IN COURT
Defense Fails to Force Immediate Court Hearing for Accused Men

Chicago — (AP) — Detectives captured two inmates of Leo V. Brothers and found "important evidence" in an early morning raid today on one of the apartments where Brothers, held secretly for the murder of Jake Lingle, once lived.

Charles E. Rabinovich and Pat Roche, special investigators, conducted the raid, taking their prisoners to a secret office to question them. They refused to reveal whom they had captured, but John A. Swanson, state's attorney, hinted that the arrests were significant.

"At this time," he said, "it is inadvisable to reveal the names of the prisoners or the substance of the records which were seized. The men will be questioned during the day and with information which we already possess and that which we expect to gain, important disclosures are imminent."

"The records which deal largely with Brothers' movements over the last nine months will be carefully checked with the information which we now have. To give out any further information we feel would hamper the efforts of our men which are now rapidly yielding fruit."

Defense Loses Fight
The state scored a victory in the first legal skirmish in the proposed fight to send Brothers, St. Louis gangster, to the electric chair for the murder of Lingle.

Detectives intended to force the prosecution's hand by compelling the state to produce the accused man in court immediately, meet with a reversal yesterday when Judge Philip J. Finnegan acting chief justice of the criminal court, made a habeas corpus writ returnable next Wednesday, one day longer than the prosecutors had requested.

The petition for the writ was filed for Brothers in behalf of his mother, Mrs. Jessie Jensen of Webster Grove, Mo., by Attorneys Tyrrell Grove, Mo., and Louis Piquette, who alleged that the prisoner, held incommunicado in a secret place of detention since Dec. 21, was not receiving his constitutional rights. A stated argument preceded the court's decision.

"The state's attorney will without delay present the matter to the grand jury," Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chitt, told the court. "Why should we give their testimony, when they can give it to the grand jury in secret? Murder is not a bailable offense anyway."

"But," protested Attorney Krum, "he is not charged with murder."

"He will be charged with murder," retorted Chitt.

Judge Finnegan then gave the state the extended period during which time Brothers, according to State's Attorney John A. Swanson, will be indicted. The court also refused defense attorneys permission to see the prisoner.

FISH GROUP FAVORS DEPORTATION OF REDS

New York — (AP) — Deportation of alien Communists will be recommended to congress by the Fish investigating committee.

This was disclosed by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., chairman of the committee, at a mass meeting to combat Communism at Carnegie hall last night. Representatives of nearly 20 ethnic, patriotic, labor and other societies attended under a heavy police guard.

Resolutions urged:
1. Re-establishment of a bureau of investigation in the department of justice to shadow Communist and kindred organizations.
2. Levying of an embargo against Soviet exports.
3. Exclusion of the Communist and the workers' party from the ballot.

Wickersham Body Points To Dry Law's Complexity

If All Suggestions Were Acted Upon Volstead Act Would Be Rewritten

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.)
Washington — (CPA) — If all the suggestions or recommendations of the Wickersham commission were to be accepted, it would mean the rewriting of the Volstead act.

The whole structure of prohibition laws built up since the days of state prohibition and federal war-time statutes has become so complicated that law enforcement has a legal complexity entirely apart from the merits of prohibition.

The government issues a pamphlet containing all the various prohibition laws. Some of the penalties for violations become cumulative, depending on how many statutes have been violated. The difficulty arises, too, from the numerous definitions in different laws relating to exceptions or rather to permits for legal distribution. Much of the supply that bootleggers obtain has been traced to illegal withdrawals from warehouses.

While the public expects the Wickersham commission to discuss the merits of prohibition—and probably all the reports from the different commissioners every conceivable view will be expressed—nevertheless the main idea on which the commission is in apparent agreement is the clarification of the legal phases that surround law enforcement.

Fear to Prolong Debate
For a while it was believed that the president would hesitate to send to congress at this time the Wickersham report.

CUBAN NEWSPAPERS ARE SUPPRESSED

Only Three Appear on Streets of Havana After Decree by Machado

Havana — (AP) — Only three Havana newspapers appeared on the streets today—the Herald de Cuba, government organ, and the English language papers, The Havana Post and Havana Telegram.

All other papers, among them El Mundo, El Pais, Diario de la Marina, Informacion, and the Havana American, were suspended yesterday by President Machado in a decree charging "exaggerated and distorted" accounts of recent disorders.

In addition to the papers suspended, the periodicals Karikato, Carleles, La Semana, and Bohemia, all were made to cease publication.

The Havana American was the only English language paper suspended. Its editorials recently have criticized the president and yesterday recommended his resignation.

El Mundo, El Pais and Diario de la Marina are among the four or five most important papers in the republic. Information is an afternoon paper, appearing for the first time Thursday, published by Diario de la Marina. The suspended magazines all have barbed the government.

The decrees of suspension, which was made under the recently granted executive powers of President Machado, states that the government has a "wholesome respect" for the freedom of the press, but that newspaper accounts have been so "exaggerated and distorted" that the public has been misinformed and alarmed.

CURIO COLLECTOR IS KILLED BY OLD GUN

Chicago — (AP) — A revolver in a collection of curios, said to be one of the first of its kind ever manufactured, brought death to Preston M. Nolan, 55, clubman, antique collector and authority on real estate and bank appraisals.

Nolan, credited with having been the first man in the country to use the Earl of England system of real estate valuation, was exhibiting his collection of guns to guests. The old revolver attracted attention.

While Nolan attempted to unload the weapon, equipped with an old-style ejector rod, there was an explosion and the bullet passed through his heart. Death was instantaneous.

Guns were a hobby with Nolan although he was not a hunter. He was known as a humorist as well as the author of books on financial topics, including "Business First."

BELGIAN DOORS OPEN TO SPANISH REBEL FLIERS

Antwerp, Belgium — (AP) — Nine Spanish army aviators who participated in the recent revolutionary movement there arrived from Portugal today and were permitted to enter Belgium. Among them was General Llano, who said he would become sales agent in France for an important Portuguese export firm.

The others were Commanders Miranda Carlo and Gonzalez Gilles Artur, and six captains in the Spanish Air Corps. They were met by Prof. Henriette Diaz Samondo, representing Major Ramon Franco, who is now in Paris. Most of them are going on to Paris by way of Brussels.

MEN CAUGHT AS THEY STRIVE TO REMOVE DEBRIS

Second Slide Engulfs Crew Attempting to Clear Railroad Track

Guayaquil, Ecuador — (AP) — A landslide roaring down from the mountains along the Guayaquil and Quito railroad near Huigra today buried 170 track workers who were uncovering a stretch of about 200 yards covered by a previous slide.

First reports said the slide had engulfed a train, killing 170 passengers, but the railroad authorities said the only victims were the repair crew. They reassured the people, who had feared that President Isidro Ayora was aboard a train struck by the landslide.

The first slide came at about 10 o'clock last night, the railroad officials said, and an emergency crew was sent out from Guayaquil immediately to clear the track. It was raining so hard, however, that the work could not be started until shortly before dawn this morning.

At 5 o'clock a. m. the crew was working at top speed when dirt and rocks began rolling down the hillside. In a few minutes the great slide struck suddenly and 170 men were buried before they could escape.

Huigra is a small town of 500 population located 73 miles from Guayaquil on the road between Guayaquil and Quito. It is about halfway between Guayaquil and Rio Bamba and located in the province of Chimborazo.

It is a division point on the Guayaquil and Quito railroad and is a residence point for railroad officials. The Chanchan river runs through the town.

The Guayaquil-Quito line is the one important railroad of Ecuador. Most of the highways in the country are more like bridge paths than roads and are frequently impassable during the rainy season, which is now at its height.

President Isidro Ayora, the minister of finance and two Ecuadorian bankers were due at Guayaquil early this afternoon after a conference at Quito with Prof. Edwin Kemmerer, Princeton university economist who is on the way to Peru to organize that country's finances.

IOWA MAN IS NAMED MARKETING SPECIALIST

Madison — (AP) — R. E. Fisher, Humboldt, Iowa, has been named marketing specialist in wool and livestock with the state department of agriculture and markets, Commissioner William F. Renk announced today.

Mr. Fisher is to work with cooperatives in a program to increase terminal marketing by cooperative agencies and to assist new organizations while strengthening local associations.

He is a graduate of Iowa State college, has managed his own farm, and was field man for the Cleveland stockyards for several years.

USES SIGN LANGUAGE TO FOIL HIGHWAYMEN

Lincoln, Neb. — (AP) — Dr. L. C. Hosterman, Lincoln physician, successfully foiled highwaymen with his fingers and he didn't "double them up" to do it.

Accosted by two men on a dark street, the doctor resorted to the sign language of the deaf and dumb. It worked in short order, he related, the robbers taking to their heels in disgust when the intended victim indicated he did not understand the commands.

NEW "HUNGER STRIKE" MARCH BEING PLANNED

Chicago — (AP) — A "hunger strike" march to the city hall, Jan. 12, was decided last night at a meeting of 4,000 members of the Trade Union League. A committee will demand from the council $75,000,000 in unemployment relief.

William Z. Foster, noted Communist and one-time candidate for the presidency, was the principal speaker. Others called upon the listeners to "arise and fight, to follow the leadership of Russia."

A stench bomb created the only untoward happening of the meeting.

For two days he will step out of his incognito of Prince Sakhnolai to become to the American people a king in name as well as in fact. Those two days will be spent in Washington.

Absolute ruler of a territory as large as Spain and Portugal combined, with eleven million subjects, the king would be entitled to all the spectacular parades, uniforms and ceremonies which President Hoover could command. But it is the king's wish that pomp of uniforms be omitted so he may wear civilian dress.

A tentative program for the visit has been submitted to his majesty by the state department. It includes a call at the White House by the king upon his arrival and a return call by the president. A state banquet will be given the king at the White House.

Two Women Fliers Set New Record

Los Angeles — (AP) — Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper, both in their middle twenties, rested today after having established a new women's endurance flight record of 122 hours, 50 minutes.

The girls landed unexpectedly at 5:20 last night, ending their flight because of a cracked cylinder in the 170 horse-power motor of their small monoplane, the Lady Rolph. They almost tripled the former women's record of 42 hours, 16 minutes set by Miss Trout and Elinor Smith of New York.

As fresh as though the five-day flight had been only a pleasure spin of a few minutes duration, Bobbie and Edna each had a "glad to be back" and a "hated to come down" for the startled crowd.

The end of the flight came so suddenly that those on the ground did not realize it was over until the Lady Rolph had coasted to a quick halt on the sluggish runway and the fliers jumped out into the mud.

The first intimation they were having trouble came at noon when observers noticed a tall of black smoke wafting behind the plane as it circled the municipal airport. The girls, however, admitted they discovered evidence of motor failure ten hours before the end.

"The motor wouldn't turn enough revolutions to gain altitude," Miss Trout, one of the few women who hold a transport pilot license, said. "and it began missing, so down we came."

Promoters of the flight said they ordered the girls to land because householders near the airport were objecting to their low flying.

SLEUTHS, LAWYER FACE $250,000 SUIT

Racine Man Charges Constant Shadowing Broke His Health

Chicago — (AP) — Health broken by detective shadowing was given today by counsel for Dr. John Streeter of Racine, Wis., as the reason for filing notice of a $250,000 damage suit against William Perkins Bull, a lawyer of London and Toronto, and the Harrison Secret Service agency of Chicago.

Attorney J. Frederick Reeve said the suit would be filed today and charge constant shadowing for three years by detectives of the Harrison agency hired by Bull.

The shadowing, he added, related to a suit for divorce filed three years ago by Mrs. Sidney, charging cruel and inhuman treatment, which is still pending.

Mrs. Sidney was formerly Miss Mabelle Horlick. She is a daughter of William H. Horlick, founder of the Horlick Malted Milk company of Racine, Wis. After their marriage in 1900 Dr. Sidney, who was a practicing physician in Denver, became chemist and then treasurer of the milk company.

Bull, known as a travel lecturer, lives in Toronto and founded a hospital for Canadian army officers at Putney Heath. He is in Chicago at present.

HIGHWAY PROBLEMS UP IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Pierre, S. D. — (AP) — Highway problems today were the major issue under consideration by the 22nd South Dakota legislature. Two proposals designed to give counties and townships some of the money now going to the state highway fund were before the senate highways committee and introduction of others was predicted.

HOUSE LEADERS TO PUSH ACTION ON DROUGHT AID

Move to Force Drought Relief Appropriation to Conference

Washington — (AP) — Chairman Payne of the American Red Cross recommended to President Hoover today that an appeal be made for $10,000,000 for the relief of drought sufferers.

After a conference with the president, Payne said the rapidly increasing demands would make the appeal necessary. The exact date on which the appeal would be made has not been decided.

During the last ten days, demands on the Red Cross through its local chapters in the affected states have been increasing rapidly. Among the heavy items have been requests for food, for livestock, requests which the Red Cross has granted.

A total of 21 states are now requiring aid. Much of the help from livestock has been granted in Arkansas and Kentucky.

Washington — (AP) — Administration leaders in the house decided today to force the drought relief appropriation bill to conference with the senate under a special rule and thus speed enactment.

The decision was reached at a meeting in the office of Speaker Longworth.

Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee, advised the unofficial steering committee that it had failed to obtain unanimous consent to send the bill to conference. To conference he would ask it be given a special legislative status.

Chairman Snell said he would call the house rules committee together Monday and order out a rule to give the measure right of way.

The agreement promised a break in the several days deadlock which was held the $60,000,000 loan measure in the house, after the senate addition of a $15,000,000 amendment for food loans.

The appropriations committee chairman has tried today for several days to obtain unanimous consent to send the bill to conference. Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, objected. Wood had indicated before today that he would not consent to the seeking of a special rule for consideration.

LA FOLLETTE REVISES FIGURES ON JOBLESS

Washington — (AP) — Senator La Follette today corrected figures on unemployed in Omaha which he read into the record yesterday. He had said unemployment was approximately 30 per cent of the population of 214,000. The figures should have been about 19 per cent.

REPORT IS DENIED

Omaha — (AP) — Senator La Follette today forwarded to Senator Robert La Follette (Wisconsin) at Washington a telegram in which he denied that figures purporting to show that there are 10,000 unemployed in Omaha are true.

Dr. James P. Connolly, director of the city welfare department, who Senator La Follette said, had forwarded the information to him in a recent letter, denied that he had written to La Follette at any time.

"The highest estimate of unemployment made by the mayor's office during the period of depression was 6,000," Mayor Metcalfe said. "Recently this figure has been materially decreased. Dr. Connolly had advised me that he did not write to Senator La Follette, and I am investigating to determine if he did write to the Wisconsin senator. If any one did."

Other civil leaders today described the revised figure placed in the record today by La Follette as "ridiculous" and "the result of wild guesses."

STATES AVAIL SELVES OF FEDERAL ROAD FUNDS

Washington — (AP) — The Bureau of Public Roads reported today that states during the period of depression have received $1,000,000,000 in federal aid for highway construction.

The 31 district offices of the bureau are examining proposals for road construction which will involve use of the loan fund.

Projects already recommended for approval by the national offices are being considered here. The first came from Delaware one week after the emergency legislation was enacted. Construction projects have been proposed by Florida, Maryland and Connecticut.

POST-CRESCENT PRINTED ON PAPER MADE IN VALLEY

Starting today the Appleton Post-Crescent is printed on newsprint of improved quality manufactured especially for this newspaper by the Combined Locks Paper Co. of Appleton. This newsprint, because of its higher surface, permits better printing than the stock heretofore used.

This is the first time in many years that an Appleton daily newspaper has been printed entirely upon newsprint manufactured in Appleton's trading area. At various times in the past small shipments of newsprint have been made to The Post-Crescent but until the recent arrangement with the Combined Locks Paper Co., the great bulk of newsprint came from other papermaking territories.

While this change was made in accordance with The Post-Crescent's policy of improving the newspaper every possible way, it has the additional advantage of providing business for a home industry and in a measure affords more employment in this territory.

FIVE BANDITS ROB BANK IN ILLINOIS

Escape With $7,000 Cash and $15,000 in Non-negotiable Bonds

Chicago — (AP) — Five bandits held up the State Bank of South Park today, escaping with $7,000 cash and $15,000 in bonds. The bonds were non-negotiable.

While one of the robbers remained in a car parked at the curb, two guarded within the suburban bank and the remaining two walked up to the place.

Confronting Irene Tallich and H. Schnagt, tellers, the pair forced them to stand on the far side of the lobby from the tellers' cages.

While one guarded, the other started a methodical search of the cash drawers in the tellers' cages. In the midst of it, a customer walked into the bank just ahead of another bank.

It was at this point that the third and fourth bandit entered the bank. While two guarded the employees and the single customer, the third commanded Schnagt to open the vault. The fourth continued calmly clearing out $7,000 in cash from the drawers.

After scooping the $15,000 in bonds from the vaults, the bandits calmly walked out, entered the motor at the curb, and drove away.

M'KELLAR AGAINST HIGHER MAIL RATE

Washington — (AP) — Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, is running a race with the interstate commerce commission to head off by legislation, a commission decision on Postmaster General Brown's application for an increase in parcel post rates. This is designed to raise about $9,900,000 more in federal revenues.

The Tennesseean has a bill pending to repeal the postmaster general's authority to make such a request. The measure is still before the senate post office committee, but he says a poll of that group shows enough support to report it out.

TRADEWIND HOPS FROM BERMUDA FOR AZORES

Hamilton, Bermuda — (AP) — The monoplane Tradingwind hopped off for the Azores at 12:15 p. m. (11:15 a. m. E. S. T.) on the second leg of a "pay-day" flight from New York to Paris. Local weather conditions were favorable as Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. MacLaren took off on their 2,000 mile all-water hop across the Atlantic.

They arrived here Wednesday from Norfolk, Va., in their white monoplane, Tradewind, and remained while repairs were made to the motor. The second leg will take them across about 2,000 miles of open water to Horta on the island of Fayal.

REPLIES TODAY TO REQUEST IN POWER DISPUTE

Senate to Be Held in Session Until Answer Comes from President

NEW BATTLE FORECAST

Coalition of Democrats and Independents May Start New Fight

Washington — (AP) — President Hoover today declined to resubmit to the senate the nominations of Charles Smith and Commissioner Garsaud and Draper of the power commission.

Washington — (AP) — President Hoover informed senate leaders he expected to reply today to the resolution requesting the return of three power commissioners' nominations.

Mr. Hoover also indicated quite clearly that he did not intend to comply.

The commissioners are Chairman George Olin Smith of Maine; Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana; Claude L. Draper of Wyoming. They previously were confirmed by the senate and have taken office.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, was prepared to keep the senate in session today awaiting the reply of Mr. Hoover. It is expected at the capitol to be a signal for a new battle between the president and the coalition of senate Democrats and Republican Independents.

The president requested Attorney General Mitchell for an opinion even before the senate resolution reached his desk. The latter dropped all else at once.

Debates Next Move

Meanwhile, advocates of the motion for recall sponsored by Walsh, Democrat, Montana, are considering plans for further action in event the president rejects the request which was adopted yesterday.

Senator Walsh said off the floor that as a "legal proposition" the three men are no longer commissioners, but as a practical proposition there is no way of getting them out unless the president accedes to the senate's request as I assume he will."

Despite the contention of the Montana that the commissioners were legally out of office, their nominations are not on the senate's calendar of executive business for reconsideration.

The coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents, which opposed the Hoover policies on tariff and farm relief in the last session, again combined to over-ride the administration forces on the Walsh motion and another battle royal between the president and the rebellious senate is in prospect.

Refusal to vote appropriations for the commission was under consideration by the senate foes of the three commissioners. This action was being considered by a number of senators including Dill, Democrat, Washington, and Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, though Walsh said he wanted to talk with other members of the group before deciding.

Walsh said he takes the view the president can keep the three men on the commission if he wants to, regardless of the senate's vote, and that no legal action can be brought to compel him to comply with the senate's request.

Senator Blaise, Democrat, South Carolina, said in the senate shortly after it convened, he hoped "President Hoover, for once in his life, will prove himself a man and refuse to take the power commission nominations back to the senate."

Although he voted against confirmation of the commissioners in the first place, Blaise contended the senate "as true sportsmen, had no right to ask the president to return the ball after they had fumbled it to him."

He also argued the president had "no jurisdiction" in the matter now that the men were in office.

Five days debate preceded the senate vote. Smith, Garsaud and Draper were taken to task for the dismissal of two commission workers—Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King. Some advocates of the resolution contended the commissioners had been influenced in this by power interests.

Hits "Power Trust"

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, contended the Republican party was being swayed by what he termed "the power trust."

Foes of the resolution argued the dismissal was a routine operation of law applying to all employees of the commission; that no power policies were at stake and that the recall move was broad the senate's rights since the commissioners had taken office.

No official word was forthcoming from the White House early today on the position President Hoover will take. If he stands pat, the difficult course of impeachment would be the only path open for any senate attempt to remove the commissioners from office.

Nye to Launch Resolution to Unseat Pennsylvania Senator

CAMPAIGN FUND OF DAVIS BASIS FOR HIS ACTION

"Can't Be Consistent and Refrain" from Move, North Dakotan Says

Washington, (AP)—Pennsylvania's senate seat, now held by James J. Davis and long vacant while the conflict over William S. Vare raged, again is threatened.

Because expenditures of the Republican ticket upon which Davis was elected reached a sum placed by Chairman Nye of the campaign funds investigating committee, at about $1,200,000, the North Dakota senator has announced he will introduce a resolution to unseat the former labor secretary.

His action, said Nye yesterday, will come probably in a little more than a week, as soon as the committee has completed its Pennsylvania investigation and report and after other pressing business is disposed of.

"On the record as it stands now, I don't see how I could be consistent and refrain from offering such a resolution if others do not do it," he said.

"It is not a pleasant thing but the only thing to do. This will be a determined move and more than a gesture. The senate at least should be given an opportunity to vote upon it," Davis withheld comment.

Refers to Vare Case

Nye pointed out there was a "slight difference" only between the Davis case and that of Vare, who was denied a seat on the grounds of excessive expenditures and other charges in connection with his 1926 primary campaign.

"In the Vare incident," he said, "we were dealing with the boss of the machine that backed Davis." "How much of the expenditure went for Senator Davis, Nye would not estimate but he recalled testimony by one witness before his committee that had Davis been the only candidate, the amount spent would have been $1,000,000. The makers of state office, including the Republican candidate for governor, were on the ticket.

Nye's announcement was one more worry for the administration leaders who are seeking by every means to avert an extra session. Last night a late session was held to dispose of one controversy and more night meetings are in prospect.

2,000 OPIUM DENS FLOURISH IN HANKOW

Huge Revenue to Municipal Government Handicaps Work to Crush Them

Hankow, (AP)—It is estimated that there are more than 2,000 opium smoking dens in this city, all of them flourishing.

The dens are under supervision of the municipal government of Hankow and the daily revenue to the city council runs as high as $3,000,000 (silver). This sum represents the greater share of the city's income and attempts of the reformers to close the dens have met with strenuous opposition.

A syndicate which maintains 48 large opium smoking resorts has applied to the city council for a monopoly. Small dens have organized a protective association and are engaged in conducting war against the syndicate.

Although authorities at Hankow have urged the Hankow officials to close up every den in the city regardless of influence or wealth, nothing concrete has been accomplished. In the meantime, the national government continues to wage relentless war on the drug dealers of Shanghai. Seizures on the Yangtze river below Hankow are becoming daily occurrences while few coastal or river ships are able to enter the port of Shanghai without being searched.

AERIAL DEFENSE UP TO U. S. ARMY

Navy Yields Plane for Guardianship of Coast Line and Possessions

Washington, (AP)—Aerial defense of the coast line of the United States and its overseas possessions is now up to the army.

The navy has agreed to turn the 500 over lock, stock and barrel, ending a dispute between the two services that has involved several other government branches and some congressional debate.

In future the naval air force will be an arm of the fleet and nothing else. Such land stations as are maintained will serve as training stations and as ports but will not be regarded as coast defenses.

Soon after taking office Secretary Adams asked the Attorney General for an opinion as to just where army fliers left off the defending the coast and where the navy should begin. Nothing came of it. Conference between the services failed to conclude matters. The president referred the situation to the bureau of efficiency. Yesterday Admiral Pratt and General MacArthur, executive heads of the two, made it known they had got together. Announcing this, the two departments said:

"The present agreement is being heralded as the beginning of the closest cooperation that has ever existed between the two branches of our national defense."

GIRL SAVED FROM FINE BY FEW PUFFS OF SMOKE THEORY

Evanston, Ill. (AP)—A few cigarette puffs blew up the case against Miss Barbara Holden. Accused of violating traffic rules by parking her car without lights, Miss Holden, a co-ed at Northwestern university, told the court:

"When I parked my car in front of a sorority house the lights were burning. I think some of the girls wanted to smoke so they turned off the headlights, had a puff, and forgot to turn them on again."

"Probably so," said Magistrate Harry H. Porter. "Case dismissed."

5 Convicts Are Whipped in Delaware

Wilmington, Del. (AP)—Five men, convicted of larceny and serving terms in Newcastle workhouse, were marched out into the prison court yard a few mornings ago and submitted to a punishment as old as the state of Delaware.

Stripped to their waists, they were tied to a whipping post and a prison officer with a cat-o-nine-tails carried out the sentence of the court. Two of them were given 20 lashes and the other three 10 lashes each.

Only in Delaware of the United States in 1931 is a punishment formally administered which was general all up and down the Atlantic seaboard nearly 300 years ago. And in Delaware, while the whipping is supposed to be done publicly, it is still so common-place a matter that it seldom draws a crowd.

It is done as humanely as possible. The lashes are laid on so carefully that they rarely break the skin and the limit, 60 lashes, is seldom administered.

But Delaware believes the whipping post is an excellent deterrent against crime. The legislators say that once a professional crook has been whipped he is disgraced before his fellows of the underworld and loses caste. As recently as 1923 a movement to abolish the whipping post was defeated in the legislature.

All whippings are administered at Newcastle workhouse, where long term offenders serve out their sentences. No woman has been whipped for many years.

The law prescribes 40 lashes for highway robbery, 20 to 40 lashes for breaking and entering, 20 lashes for counterfeiting, not more than 20 lashes for arson or petty larceny, and from 5 to 20 lashes for wife-beating. In addition, of course, the offender is fined or imprisoned or both.

Lashes are provided for some crimes that have become almost obsolete, such as stealing a horse or burning a ship or a granary.

The whipping post is known to have been used in Delaware in 1555, when the Dutch settled there, but the oldest written record goes back to April 4, 1858, when an innkeeper in Sussex-co was sentenced to be whipped for an offense which is not named in the record.

Midsummer Trout Fishing Is Fine Outdoor Sport

BY R. A. CLAFLIN

To my way of thinking nothing in the line of fishing can beat midsummer trout fishing for downright pleasure. Nature is then in full dress, the early morning sun is pleasant and the shade of the trees later on in the day invites you to sit and doze and the weather is ideal for camping. It is true that at that time the mosquitoes and flies are at their worst, yet it is entirely possible to protect oneself from their onslaughts. And, after all, what if they are annoying? When they bite, the trout also bite, and with the sweat we must expect some of the bites.

Contrary to general opinion of trout fishermen, there are some streams in Marinette-co that contain splendid trout—no, not as many as years ago, but enough, nevertheless, to still make of it a good place to go for trout. And some of the lakes also have them.

The first Sunday after the opening season last year I was on one of these lakes with some friends and together we took from it forty odd trout, fishing from boats. I used spinners with flies. Some of the others preferred worms or minnows, and all caught fish.

The main thing, with its north and south branches, is one of the finest natural trout waters I have ever known—and if the proper efforts were put forth it could be what it once was—the most prolific of all Wisconsin streams. It has been fished as many years I believe as any water in the state, yet, contrary to the belief of many that it is "all fished out," it still has a considerable number of trout—speckled, rainbows and browns.

At a spot about a mile above Three Falls on the main river, an old Indian trail crosses the stream. Many years ago this trail was the chief thoroughfare of the savage tribes that infested that wild country.

It requires a bit of effort to find it, but it is there, and it marks the best spot to begin fishing down stream in midsummer. There is no brush to interfere with the use of flies. Personally, I prefer dry flies on the main river. Such patterns as the Coachman, McGinty, the Dums, Black Gnat and those of subdued colors in general are effective.

Last season some very good fish were taken just above Ehree Falls. I was well satisfied with each visit I made to that part of the river, although at different times I had the pleasure of catching them in the stream.

Three or four fish of good size are enough for a morning's or evening's catch, but often ten or more are taken, depending on conditions of weather. I saw five that were caught there one day during June, last season. They weighed about two pounds apiece. That should indicate that the Thunder is far from being "fished out."

The survivors, according to the petition, are four children, Irene Bersch, Milwaukee, Margaret Luscher, Oshkosh, Sylvia Webster, Oshkosh, and William Marx, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Dreyer makes the claim that there was a will in which she was to be the beneficiary of Mr. Marx in consideration of services she had rendered him from 1929 until the time of his death.

Mrs. Dreyer is a widow and a nurse and Mr. Marx was a widower. It is set forth that the deceased lived alone and that Mrs. Dreyer gave her personal attention, caring for his welfare by doing various kinds of household work, aiding him in his own work, and nursing him when he was ill.

It is alleged he informed her as early as 1925 that if she would refrain from marrying during his lifetime she would receive $25,000 from his estate and asserted she complied with his request.

It is claimed on the part of the administrator that Mrs. Dreyer was fully compensated for her services with the exception of the last week before the death of Mr. Marx. All major allegations of the claim are denied because of insufficient information and court hearing is requested.

HEINEMANN SITS IN $25,000 SUIT IN OSHKOSH COURT

Woman Makes Attempt to Collect Big Sum from Estate of Former Employer

County Judge Fred V. Heinemann is at Oshkosh where he is presiding at hearing on a claim for $25,000 against the estate of Nicholas Marx, a merchant there, who died on March 3, 1930. The claim is presented by Mrs. Clara Dreyer of Oshkosh.

Judge Heinemann was called to preside in the case by County Judge MacDonald of Oshkosh.

Marx, who died intestate so far as the county records show, left an estate which the inventory shows to be worth approximately $20,000. If the claim should be allowed, in full, Mrs. Dreyer would thus obtain the entire property of the deceased.

Objection to the claim was filed by the Security bank of this city, administrator. The bank is represented at the hearing by Frank E. Keefe and Walter J. Paul, S. J. Luchsing, John F. Kluwin, and Harry W. Riley appear for the claimant.

The survivors, according to the petition, are four children, Irene Bersch, Milwaukee, Margaret Luscher, Oshkosh, Sylvia Webster, Oshkosh, and William Marx, Milwaukee.

TOWN EXTENDS TAX PAYMENT TIME 6 MONTHS

Freedom Is First District in County to Take Advantage of New Law

The Freedom town board Thursday night voted to extend for six months the period for paying 50 per cent of the town taxes. The action gives taxpayers the alternative of paying all their town taxes within the regulation time or delaying half of the payment until July. This action will make it easier for many farmers to meet their taxes this year, according to Henry P. Van Dyke, town chairman.

This town is the first district in the county to take advantage of the new state law permitting extension of the taxpaying period to July 1. The county board has adopted a resolution approving the plan, thereby making it possible for towns, cities and villages to extend the collection time.

The ordinance adopted by the Freedom board provides that taxpayers taking advantage of the extension shall pay interest of 3 per cent per year on unpaid taxes. No extension can be granted to any taxpayer unless he has paid, at the regular time, all other taxes due.

Taxes unpaid at the expiration of the extension shall be declared delinquent by the town treasurer, with an additional interest charge of 15 per cent per year after the expiration date.

On all taxes collected after March 1, the final date for regular payment of taxes, there shall be a penalty of 2 per cent in addition to the interest of 3 per cent.

The ordinance permitting the extension will not be applicable to persons against whom there now are outstanding tax certificates.

TWO REELECTED TO VOCATIONAL BOARD

Carleton Saecker and Fred E. Bachman to Continue Educational Duties

Carleton Saecker and Fred E. Bachman were reelected to the Vocational school board at the meeting of the board of education at Lincoln school Friday evening.

Miss Esther Graef, mathematics teacher at the high school, was given leave of absence for next semester, and Mrs. Roy Boeticher was appointed substitute for that period. Miss Graef will study at the University of Southern California.

The board was invited to attend a dinner meeting at the Orthopedic school Thursday evening, when Dr. E. J. Berkeiser, Chicago orthopedic surgeon will hold a clinic and give an address. The meeting is sponsored by the Outagamie County Medical society and the staff of the Orthopedic school.

Answering the request of the common council that the school board provide supervision for ice rinks on school property, the board announced that there are no ice rinks in the city under the supervision of the school board. The rinks were flooded by the city on school property.

Only two appointments of the high school advisory committee have been made, Carleton Saecker by the chamber of commerce, and Mrs. T. E. Orsborn by the Appleton Woman's club.

HOLD TWO POSTER CONTESTS WITH FARM INSTITUTES

Offer Cash Prizes to Pupils Making Best Posters Advertising Events

Pupils of the public and parochial schools in the towns of Hortonville and Black Creek are being invited by Gus Sell, county agent, to take part in poster contests being staged in connection with farm institutes which are to be held at those two places. The Hortonville institute will be held on Jan. 20 and 21 and the Black Creek institute on Jan. 22 and 23.

For the Hortonville contests schools in the towns of Dale, Greenfield, Ellington, Liberty, Hortonville and the village of Hortonville are eligible. For the Black Creek contests schools in the towns of Maine, Bovina, Black Creek, Cicero, Center and the village of Black Creek are eligible.

Posters are to be prepared by the pupils and entered in a school contest and a cash prize of $1 is to be given the winning poster from each school. In addition there will be grand prizes of $5, $2 and $1 for the best posters selected in the final contest.

The posters must be displayed in a public place for at least a week before the institute starts and they must be delivered to the auditorium at Hortonville or Black Creek on the first day of the institute. The posters will be judged by a committee of three, including the institute conductor. Winners will be announced and prizes awarded at the evening program.

Following are some suggestions made by Mr. Sell to guide the pupils making posters:

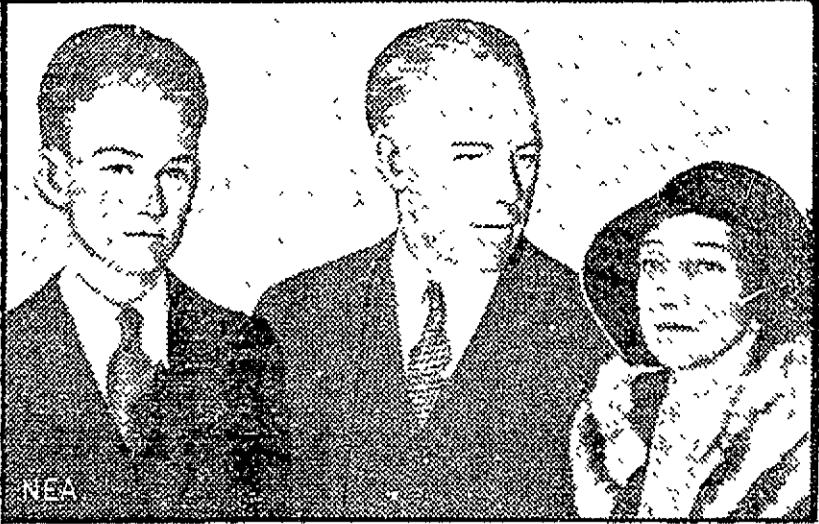

1. Make everything upon your poster contribute to the one idea that he reader may profit by attending the Farmers' Institute.
2. A combination of pictures and lettering is best. You may use drawing with pen, pencil, crayon, or water color, or you may use cut out pictures, or anything that you have done in art work.
3. Color is very helpful in making a poster effective. Even a color mounting helps set it off.
4. The fewer and the bigger the words and pictures, the better. Many words and small pictures do no attract attention.
5. Size for posters—between 12 x 18 inches and 18 x 24 inches.

Fewer Marriage Licenses Are Issued During 1930

Marriage licenses were issued during 1930 by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, to 383 couples. This is 52 fewer couples than received licenses in 1929 when 434 marriage permits were issued.

In only three months in 1930 did the number of licenses issued exceed the number issued in the same period in 1929. These months were February, July and September. As usual June was the busiest month. There were 62 issued in that month last year. However, in June, 1929, there were 82 licenses issued.

The fewest number of licenses in a single month in 1930 was eight in March. The smallest month in 1929 was December, when 15 were issued. There were 15 licenses issued in December this year.

Following is a list showing the licenses issued in each month of 1930: January, 12; February, 19; March, 8; April, 19; May, 52; June, 62; July, 29; August, 49; September, 40; October, 35; November, 42, and December, 15. In 1929 licenses were issued as follows: January, 17; February, 16; March, 16; April, 23; May, 65; June, 82; July, 25; August, 58; September, 26; October, 40; November, 43; and December, 15.

1,588 CONTAGION CASES LAST YEAR, OFFICIAL REPORTS

1,100 More Patients Recorded Than in Preceding Year, Records Show

There were 1,588 cases of contagion in Appleton during 1930, a check of records in the office of Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, reveals. Although the last few months have been relatively free from contagion, the entire year showed over 1,100 cases more than 1929, when there were only 482 cases of contagion. The measles epidemic and a large number of cases of mumps last spring offset the clean health record this fall.

April, with 355 cases of contagion, showed the blackest record. Of this number 219 were measles and 91 were mumps. May had 309 cases of contagion, including 166 of measles, and 82 of mumps, and March had 281 cases, of which 154 were measles and 98 were mumps.

In July there were 204 cases of contagion, 1 measles and 37 mumps. In February 104 of the cases of contagion were measles and 37 were mumps; in January there were 37 cases of mumps and 21 of chicken pox.

July and November each had 50 cases of contagion, October had 33,

December had 16, August 14 and September 5.

During the year there were 775 cases of measles, 393 of mumps, 176 of chicken pox, 43 of scarlet fever, 32 of tuberculosis, 133 of whooping cough, 12 of diphtheria, three of meningitis, and one each of spinal meningitis and small pox.

There were two deaths from scarlet fever, both of them in December, and one each from diphtheria and meningitis. There were no cases of erysipelas, influenza or typhoid fever during the year.

In 1929 there were 154 cases of whooping cough, 125 cases of chicken pox, 12 of scarlet fever, 31 of mumps, 27 of measles, 11 of diphtheria, five of tuberculosis, three of erysipelas, and two each of meningitis and small pox.

PLAN VAUDEVILLE AT LAWRENCE COLLEGE

Students to Be Given Opportunity to Exhibit Creative Ability

The first all-college vaudeville to be attempted at Lawrence college for several years will be presented

Friday evening, Feb. 6, in Lawrence chapel, according to F. T. Cloak, director of dramatics at Lawrence college. One of the feature numbers of the program will be a presentation of "The Silent Alarm," written by Colman. The skit enjoyed long and successful runs in Chicago, New York, and several other large cities.

The remaining numbers will consist of singing and instrumental acts chosen from students of the Lawrence conservatory, and several dancing and novelty numbers which are extremely clever. There is room for one or two more acts, on the program and Lawrence students will be given a chance to demonstrate their creative ability by offering contributions to Mr. Cloak. Try-outs will be held next Tuesday evening in the Little Theatre in Memorial chapel under the direction of Mr. Cloak, and rehearsals will start immediately.

SCORE SAVED BY QUICK WITS OF FELLOW WORKER

New Cave-in Blocks Passage for 20 Working in California Tunnel

San Francisco—(P)—Trapped by a cave-in they were working to prevent but saved from death by the quick wits of a fellow laborer, 20 men awaited deliverance today from a tunnel of the Hetch Hetchy municipal water project.

Rescue crews boring through the debris were hindered by new cave-ins as they reached the tunnel. Rescue operations began immediately after the first cave-in, which occurred early last night.

The slide, 400 feet from the east entrance, occurred near the spot where 12 men were killed by an explosion of methane gas in the tunnel last July.

The stretch where the men were working, 150 feet below the surface, is known as a tunnel through the coast range east of San Francisco.

The night shift was replacing weakened timbers to prevent a cave-in on a short stretch between concrete walled sections of the tunnel when cracking timbers and falling rock warned them of the danger. The workers dropped their tools and fled. Several got out before the slide came.

The lives of those who were trapped probably were saved by the presence of a man named Wally Morgan, 28, one of those who escaped. With the first warning of falling rock, he seized a 20 foot length of four inch iron pipe and dropped it in what he thought would be the center of the cave-in. His guess was right, the pipe extending entirely through the 16 feet of debris and furnished air to his entrapped fellows.

The workmen had scarcely broken for freedom when the roof caved in, hitting several with flying rocks and knocking others down with the rush of air. However, none was reported seriously injured.

CALLS PATROL WAGON AT COP'S REQUEST; RETURNS FOR ARREST

Spokane, Wash.—(P)—Michael McNamera may be the man Diogenes sought.

Detective Joe Hoffman staged a single handed raid on a Chinese lottery yesterday and found McNamera and 36 other witties and Chinese.

With the crowd lined up against the wall and his evidence gathered, Hoffman wondered how he'd get them all to headquarters.

He singled out Mike and gave him a nickel. "Go find a phone and call headquarters for the wagon—and come right back when you're through," Hoffman said.

Mike went out—and came back. In a few minutes the patrol wagon and Mike, with his 36 friends went to headquarters.

William M. Horner, head of the Green Bay company at Green Bay, Wis., was fined $1,000 and costs and placed on probation for two years when he was found guilty in municipal court at Green Bay yesterday afternoon of practicing medicine without a license.

Evidence against Horner was given by Walter A. Drees, an investigator for the state board of medical examiners, and Arthur W. Byström, a Green Bay reporter. Both the men visited Horner, who "treated" them, they said.

MILLS REVIEWS PAST 10 YEARS OF PARTY RULE

Says U. S. Has No Desire to Dominate Outside of Own Borders

New York—(P)—Osgood L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, reviewed today for the Women's National Republican club ten years of Republican administration of public affairs in the United States and traced the outline of what he termed "a philosophy of government that could be labeled Republican."

Declaring "there is no desire on the part of this country to dominate anywhere outside its own borders," he said:

"In the field of foreign affairs we recognize that the day of isolation is definitely over and there is no disposition on our part to seek an aloofness which can never be anything more than imaginary. We have not and shall not shirk our responsibilities as a world power, but we still maintain our right to define what those responsibilities are and to decide under what circumstances we shall use our power and resources."

In the domestic field, he cited as perhaps the outstanding achievement of the party in the last ten years the federal budget, by which the public debt has been reduced by eight billion dollars, annual interest charges by about 430 millions, and annual taxes by about $1,800,000,000.

He praised the "introduction of the flexible feature" in the tariff laws, limitation of immigration, and the work of the federal farm board.

"Prohibition doesn't enter this picture," he said, "since by action of both parties the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act had been adopted prior to March 4, 1921, the date when this story begins."

DOUDNA OUTLINES BADGER HISTORY

Traces Growth of State Through Lives of Two Wisconsin Pioneers

Weaving the history of Wisconsin through the story of two Wisconsin pioneers, E. G. Doudna, secretary of the Normal school bureau at Madison, addressed the Methodist Men's club at the church Friday evening. About 100 men, of whom 25 were from the Neenah Methodist club, heard the talk.

Prefacing his account of the two men, Henry Dodge, first territory governor of Wisconsin, and William Hamilton, son of Alexander Hamilton, with a picture of the early history of Wisconsin, Mr. Doudna told of the coming of the French and of the invasion from the south and the lead districts. He compared the lives of the two men, showing how the fate gave Dodge success at every turn of his life, and how Hamilton, with equal opportunities, somehow always arrived just too late to receive the proper reward for his efforts. One instance of this, he pointed out, was the death of the president, who expected to appoint Hamilton governor of Wisconsin, just before the appointment was made, and the subsequent appointment of Dodge to the position by the vice president.

A dinner preceded the address, the Men's club quartet sang, and a string quartet under the direction of Percy Fullinwider played.

COURT WRIT RESTORES BABY HELD AS SECURITY

Tulsa, Okla.—(P)—A baby held as security for a $46 bond and lodging bill was restored to the mother today by Judge S. J. Clendinning in common pleas court.

The action came on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the mother, Mrs. Marie Hinz, 25, naming Mrs. Flora Hinz, rooming house operator. Mrs. Hinz testified she held the child, a 16 month old girl as "security" for payment of the bill and also because she believed the baby should be taken from her mother and placed in other care.

The mother, a stenographer, told the court Mrs. Hinz refused to let her have the child until she paid the $46. The mother, divorced from the baby's father, said she had been without employment several weeks.

The baby was returned to her mother in court and Mrs. Noel said she planned to leave for her parents' home at Newton, Kas.

More Food Wanted For Relief Of Oneida Tribe

BY H. K. DERUS

Outagamie-co citizens have partly relieved the suffering of 500 destitute Indians in the town of Oneida. A trip through the district Friday afternoon revealed that two truckloads of clothing, bedding and other articles is at the county jail awaiting distribution.

A volunteer committee, headed by John E. Hantsch, county clerk, is collecting the goods. Other members of the committee are F. R. Appleton, highway commissioner; Fred V. Heinemann, county judge; George J. Schneider, congressman; Sylvester Ester, supervisor from the Second ward at Kaukauna; and P. M. Garvey, Oneida town chairman. Mr. Garvey has taken charge of the task of distributing the donations.

The Indians Friday were enthusiastic in their thanks to the "kind white brothers" who have so generously volunteered to aid them. Scores of Indian children who were without shoes and stockings, have been provided with these essentials, permitting them to leave their mud-caked moccasins and play in the fresh air and sunshine. A supply of blankets and bed clothing has

CATTLE ABORTION CAN'T BE CURED, FARMERS ADVISED

Infected Animals Must Be Weeded Out and Pens Must Be Kept Clean

BY W. F. WINSEY

Thirty farmers attended the last of a series of eight Outagamie-county meetings in the court house Friday afternoon to learn more about contagious abortion in cattle. The series was planned by Gus Sell, county agent, and the meetings were conducted by him with the assistance of Dr. V. S. Larson of the Wisconsin veterinarian department. As the subject is closely involved with the profits of the dairy farm, each of the meetings was well attended and the farmers appeared intensely interested. At no other meeting of the series were the farmers as nearly ready to start eradicating contagious abortion from the herds as at the Appleton meeting.

Contagious abortion is costing the dairymen of Outagamie-co $250,000 annually in the loss of calves, milk and the service of cows. There is absolutely no cure for the disease. The most popular and expensive of alleged cures on the market are composed either of brown sugar and creosote, or 90 per cent water, 2 per cent acid and 1 per cent vegetable coloring, according to government analysis and are, therefore, worthless. Other so-called cures are mineral waters which have been proven worthless by tests made on 44 heifers at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Other so-called cures are bran and carbolio acid, purchased as such and administered by the farmers themselves.

The reason that cures are credited to these fake medicines and materials is that cows infected usually abort once or twice and may never abort again during their lives, although they always carry the infection and may scatter it among other cows.

The symptoms of abortion are the premature birth of calves; sterility; enlarged knees or hook joints; low milk production; scours and lung trouble in calves; and under troubles in cows. Nine of these symptoms are reliable evidence of the disease. The only reliable information procurable about the infection comes from the blood test. In tests at the College of Agriculture more heifers given mineral feed aborted more than those that got no mineral feed.

Sanitation Advised

The reason that cows abort once or twice and then step altogether is that after infection the bodies of the cows develop a tolerance that prevents the abortion. This tolerance gives the medicine vender the opportunity to credit his ropes with cures.

No infection of live stock has ever been cured by medicine, such as glanders in horses, hoof and mouth diseases and tuberculosis but all the infections have been checked and stamped by sanitation methods.

Plans for the control and eradication of contagious abortion in cattle on the average farm have been developed, based upon farm and stable sanitation, and are being adopted generally.

After clean herds have been found through the blood test, the owners to avoid possible infection, purchase only cows that have been tested. They send no heifers to community pastures on account of danger present by other animals in the pasture from infected herds. They separate their cattle in the home pasture from the cattle in a neighboring pasture by a woven wire fence to prevent contact. The woven wire fence also prevents dogs from carrying infection from one herd to another.

When blood testing shows infected and clean animals in the same herd, the animals are separated in the stable, the infected animals in one row and the clean animals in the other row. The floor is treated with air slacked lime and the stable is disinfected. The clean cows are the first to be milked and the infected cows the last. This order is practiced to prevent the milk from spreading the infection.

The yard is divided with a woven wire fence and the infected animal occupy one division and the clean animal the other. The pasture is similarly divided. The litter from the stables is dumped beyond both yards to prevent the clean cattle from becoming infected from that source. Low producing, infected

MOTORCOPS TO REMAIN ON JOB DURING WINTER

Outagamie-co's motorcycle officers will be kept on duty all winter. It was decided by the county highway committee yesterday afternoon at the courthouse. However, after Jan. 15, the officers will receive a reduced salary of $125 per month instead of the $165 they receive during the summer. After Feb. 1, the committee decided, the officers will work under supervision of Sheriff John Lappen. The decision to keep the officers on duty all winter was made at the request of Sheriff Lappen.

APPLETON NASH FIRM CLAIMS BANKRUPTCY

An Appleton firm, the Appleton Nash company, and a Little Chute man, Frank E. Demerath, have filed petitions in bankruptcy with the federal court at Milwaukee. The petitions have been referred to Charles H. Forward, referee in bankruptcy at Oshkosh, for administration. The petition for the Appleton Nash company was signed by Herman L. Schneider, as president. It lists unsecured claims of $3,541.66. There are no assets, according to the petition. Demerath lists his occupation as that of a farmer and laborer. He has unsecured claims of $1,846.71 and assets of $210. The assets are claimed exempt under the bankruptcy laws.

GRANT DIVORCE TO NEW LONDON WOMAN

An absolute divorce was granted by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday afternoon to Mrs. Mary Suring, 40, Central House, New London, from her husband, Alfred, 42. She charged he husband forced her and their three small children to leave home. The couple was wed at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, April 26, 1923, and separated Nov. 24, 1930. Mrs. Suring was given custody of the three children and $20 a month for their support. She also was granted the homestead at New London.

APPLETON AND NIESEN TO ATTEND ROAD SHOW

F. R. Appleton, highway commissioner, and John Niesen, Kaukauna, a member of the county highway committee, will leave Sunday for St. Louis, Mo., to attend the annual convention and road show of the American Road Builders' association. The convention will open Monday and continue through Friday.

Cows are sold to butchers and infected high producing cows are sold to other farmers, eventually, who have infected herds. A high producing infected cow that has stopped aborting is a better bargain for a farmer with an infected herd than a clean cow, as the clean cow will begin aborting as soon as she arrives in the infected herd. As heifers do not become infected until they reach the reproduction age, a clean herd may be built by this plan from the daughters of the infected cows.

Pens Disinfected

Under the third plan of eradicating abortion, the animals are blood tested and maternity pens are provided for the cows in the stable. These pens are disinfected and kept clean as is the balance of the stable. Clean cows in the herd occupy the maternity pen about three days, but an infected cow is kept in the pen three weeks after dropping a calf. The reason for the difference of the time is that the types of cows in the pen is that the danger of spreading abortion infection is greatest at the time of calving. Before the infected cow is released from the maternity pen she is thoroughly washed and disinfected.

The above plans for control of contagious abortion in cattle were presented by Dr. Larson who said: "If you farmers about Appleton want 300 of your herds accredited as free from abortion, you may have that done in a very short time. Blood testing for abortion" is now made compulsory by buyers for 75 per cent of the cattle shipped out of the state and such testing may soon be made general. Go home and think this matter of cleaning up your herds over and if you decide to do so send your names to the county agent so that he may plan community groups for the testing."

Dr. William Madison, Appleton, demonstrated the blood test at the meeting.

sham report because it would provoke debate that would consume time needed to pass emergency relief and appropriation measures generally. But the necessity for the Wickersham report as a background on the whole enforcement problem became apparent when the request of the prohibition bureau for additional appropriations became vital.

Indeed, the Wickersham report will give foundation for the added expense that the executive branch of the government thinks is essential if the law is to be enforced at all.

The majority of the commission think the eighteenth amendment can be enforced but there is much doubt as to the efficacy of the complicated provisions of the law. It may well be that if congress should undertake the job of rewriting the Volstead law, the question of what constitutes a proper and non-intoxicating alcoholic content would come up for consideration. In other words the situation may have drifted past the idea of "modification" as it is commonly referred to and have passed into the stage of reconstructing the whole legal side of prohibition. The drys probably would oppose any drastic changes but if the administration recommended that a new law be written, undoubtedly there would be a majority for such a proposal.

It is too early to forecast any action at this session beyond the possible appointment of a committee to draft new legislation.

GARBAGE PROBLEM STILL A PROBLEM

Another fiasco has attended the effort to find a solution to the problem of public disposal of garbage and rubbish from Appleton homes. So far as municipal garbage and rubbish collection and disposal is concerned Appleton still is in the dark ages, with very little prospect of seeing daylight for a long, long time.

The final stages of the effort to find a modern solution to the problem resolved itself into a discussion whether garbage should be fed to an incinerator or to hogs, and at the present moment neither has won. The mayor's preference for hogs has gained such advantage as rejection of the incineration project can give him but there still is quite a hurdle to surmount before the city is definitely committed to a program of feeding garbage to pigs and breeding cockroaches in public rubbish dumps.

In the last analysis the verdict of the council, supported by the mayor's deciding vote, was not whether the city should build an incinerator, but whether the aldermen should be in accord with the mayor, regardless of their personal convictions. The votes of Aldermen McGillan and Kittner and Alderman McGillan's speech aptly illustrate this. Kittner was chairman of the committee which unanimously recommended an incineration plant and, with McGillan, had frequently expressed his preference for that method of garbage disposal but when put to the test both voted with the mayor and against the incinerator.

Little surprise was occasioned by the Wednesday fiasco. Appleton people over a period of years have grown accustomed to that sort of thing. They remember how money was raised for bridges, for street signs, for interceptor sewers and for other things only to find at the end of the year that the bridges weren't built, the street signs still were missing and the sewer wasn't constructed, but the money was gone. Whether the bank loans at the end of this year will be decreased by the amount that might have gone into an incineration plant still is to be determined. If the people are skeptical they hardly can be censured for it.

MR. LUCAS' DAY IS OVER

The more Mr. Lucas is examined at Washington the deeper he gets into the bog. His right to oppose the election of a Republican candidate such as Senator Norris is clear enough. No one takes exception to that. But his right to oppose his election while maintaining his directorship in the National Republican committee is quite another thing. The situation becomes cloudier when it is realized that he knew that his superior, the chairman of the National Republican committee was telling the country that it was supporting all Republican candidates including Mr. Norris.

But even that is not all. It appears now that Mr. Lucas borrowed $4,000 for the purpose of spending it against Mr. Norris. He borrowed it as an individual, it is true, but in order to get it from the Commercial National bank at Washington he made a special deposit of $5,000 which belonged to the National Republican committee. And now it appears that this deposit had upon it the significant quotation made by the assistant cashier: "Hold $4,000 as collateral for loan."

It is plain enough regardless of Mr. Lucas' protestation that he was acting as an individual in opposing Senator Norris and that he borrowed the money as an individual and spent it as an individual, that he was in fact subsidized by the National Republican committee or expected to be reimbursed by that organization that had already committed itself to the support of Senator Norris. And the devious ways used to cloak the transaction in secrecy only show what in fact was thought about it by the men who engineered it.

The Republican National committee needs some man of strong character and recognized probity of the General Dawes type to direct its affairs. It is long past time for Mr. Lucas to resign.

SCIENTIFIC PROPHETS

The annual meeting of the American Society for the Advancement of Science recently held in Cleveland brought together five thousand scientists representing fifty scientific organizations. Over one thousand papers were read, each presenting some added word of truth or of opinion or theory based upon research or reason. Most of these were extremely vital to man's future outlook upon life. Ordinarily a scientist is not placed in the category of a prophet. Yet many papers seemed to portend the future of man or his environment far beyond the vision or dreams of the ordinary layman.

Man's own future status in his living world is a subject for speculation, hence the views of three well known scientists on "The Future of Man in the Light of His Past" gives us something to think about. These savants, Prof. W. F. Ogburn of Chicago University, Prof. E. M. East of Harvard, and Dr. A. W. Kiddle of the Carnegie Institute, discuss the subject from the viewpoint of the sociologist, the geneticist, and the archaeologist respectively.

Environment and culture, we learn, will keep on becoming more complex so that we shall need 45 or 50 years to prepare ourselves for life. Man's social organization will reach a much higher state in which a simple scheme of political science like democracy will have no place. Moral standards will be modified. Right will yield to social expediency. Farmers will be metropolitan. Thousands of new tools and raw materials will be discussed which will abolish poverty and make everyone wealthy.

Population will be controlled and will reach three billion by 2100 A. D. at which point it will be stabilized. Babies will be regulated by the law of supply and demand and there will be universal education. Plumbers will read Aristotle.

The yellow and white races will spread more and more into the thinly populated parts of the globe, and the struggle for survival will continue. Man's greatest adventure will be war, and he will still die of heart's disease.

So each scientist has his ideas as to man's future status, each one of them to his own field and his own prophecy. His dreams and visions might come true were it not for other inventors and scientists who are constantly adding the unexpected to human knowledge. Someone might find a way of warding off old age and creating a race of Methuselahs, or a process of glandular hypodermic to convert Turks to Christians, thereby changing the religious thought of the world or the biological production of life. Any of them might upset the apple cart. It is interesting to watch scientists take mental exercise for the farthest reaches of the imagination mark the boundary lines of their endeavors.

PONTIUS PILATE

Pontius Pilate, politician.
Was the slave of self-ambition.
He grew merrier or graver
As he brought in Roman favor.
Pontius Pilate stopped to measure
Wrong or right by Roman pleasure.
Doing good he thought a blunder,
If it brought on Roman thunder.
He'd cause any friend's removal
For his emperor's approval.

Pontius Pilate stood in terror
Of committing any error.
He was much too shrewd and clever
To do right for right's sake ever.
Over decisions he'd sit blinking
Till he knew what Rome was thinking.
Ere he ruled in his dominion
He must first get Rome's opinion.
Poor old Pilate, terror-haunted,
Guessing just what Caesar wanted!

Many a man still spurs and fences
And first counts the consequences
And considers—more's the pity—
How the voters in the city
Will by honor be affected.
Will the brave man be rejected?
Will the spoken truth defeat him?
How tomorrow will men greet him?
And, like poor old Pontius Pilate,
He does naught the mob want smile at.

Today's Anniversary

ETHAN ALLEN'S BIRTH

On Jan. 10, 1737, Ethan Allen, famous American soldier, was born at Litchfield, Conn. He moved to Vermont in 1760 and took an active part in that state's controversy with New York over land grants.

At the outbreak of the Revolution Allen organized an expedition against Ticonderoga. On the morning of May 10, 1775, he surprised the British garrison and forced its commander to surrender "in the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

Allen later was sent on secret missions to Canada and did good service in Montgomery's expedition. He was captured near Montreal and sent to England. Some months later he was sent back to the country and after being held prisoner in Halifax and New York, was exchanged.

On his return to Vermont, he was breveted a lieutenant colonel by Congress and became brigadier general in the Vermont militia.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE RESPIRATION MACHINE

Schafer's prone-pressure method of artificial respiration or resuscitation is recognized as the most effective we can use in all cases of drowning, gassing, electric shock, or cessation or serious depression of breathing from any cause.

In some few communities, poorly manned as to medical or hospital service, they are still using antiquated pulmotors or lung-motors, usually in the hands of well-meaning but uneducated firemen, policemen or life guards. Hamlets and backward towns have been "stuck" with the spectacular machines and the fiscal authorities just hate to scrap the gadgets now, incidentally the politicians refuse to pass up all the grand newspaper publicity the infliction of such a machine on a victim is sure to bring to all hands implicated in the atrocity.

It seems the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are growing-up and getting big enough, physically and intellectually, to have something to say about the proper method of resuscitation, and against these more intelligent citizens the high-pressure salesmen for the dangerous breathing machines are not so successful.

But there are two kinds of apparatus which deserve unqualified approval, provided they are used only by physicians or those with special training. First, the inhalator, a mere rubber bag by means of which the patient, while receiving Schafer's prone-pressure resuscitation, may have oxygen or air mixed with perhaps 7 per cent of carbon dioxide, to inhale. Whenever such an inhalator is at hand it is a great help in the resuscitation. Every hospital worthy of the name should have inhalators ready for all emergency calls. Firemen and policemen should be compelled to keep their hands of all such treatment. It is not so much for the oxygen administered by the inhalator, but rather for the carbon dioxide, which is the natural stimulant to the respiration. The effect of the inhalator makes it a valuable asset in the treatment of various conditions in which the breathing is shallow and enfeebled.

The other apparatus which has proved of real value is the Drinker respirator, which is a metal cabinet just large enough to accommodate the patient's body. There is an adjustable rubber diaphragm or collar so that the patient's head remains outside of the cabinet. There is an electric motor which can be regulated so that the air pressure around the patient's body within the cabinet may be varied from slightly less than natural atmospheric pressure to slightly more—these rhythmic variations of pressure serve to inflate and deflate the chest regularly as in natural breathing. This apparatus has shown itself particularly lifesaving in cases of paralysis of the respiratory muscles. In such cases any other known method of artificial respiration becomes in itself an ordeal for both the patient and the attendants, after the first hour or two. By means of the Drinker apparatus many victims of infantile paralysis otherwise doomed to succumb may be saved. A smaller size adapted for the establishment of respiration in feeble or prematurely born infants is being used with happy results in various progressive hospitals. The full size apparatus at present costs $2,000. This is the invention of Philip Drinker, Ch. E., of Harvard School of Public Health, Boston.

Don't Hold It Down

Please give a more complete explanation of belly breathing. As I understand it you directed that I lie on my back and inhale allowing the lower part of belly to expand and holding the upper part down some way, and then exhale allowing the upper part to come up and holding the lower part down . . . (R. T. D.)

Answer—No, no, no, you've got it all balled up. That way you'd be almost in convulsions and you'd have a serious time getting yourself straightened out. I give it up—I can't give a clearer description of natural breathing than I attempted in the series of articles which apparently only confused you. You you shouldn't hold anything down or in or out or up. You just breathe as a person sound asleep breathes, or as one under ether breathes. No effort or straining at all. Just let more restful or inhibition, forget your chest, and let the belly function. Remember belly is derived from a word meaning bellows; and breathe through your open mouth when doing the bellows exercise.

Three Dead Ladies Get Seaside
The count to date is three dead ladies who assure me they suffer from seasickness whenever they travel on the sea. I do hear a sea and bid from a dead man who is subject to seasickness. If any dead man who reads this can testify that he becomes seasick, I'll be grateful for that information. None of the three sisters who have given their testimony offered any details about the extent, duration or cause of the seasickness. It would be more instructive if we knew whether the sickness antedated the seasickness. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

THE bridge, deep in the forest, was a very pretty sight because 'twas all built by the natives out of logs from great big trees. It stretched across an open space. Said Scoutmaster, "What holds it in place?" And Scout answered, "Those big logs can hold it up with ease."

The Travel Men said, "Natives work real hard and never stop to shirk. That's why they do all things up right. They know that plan is wise. You'll find it's never any fun to only have a task half done. Results are bound to always come to anyone who tries."

Woe Coppy laughed and swung about. "A lecture's being handed out," said he. "But I don't mind it cause I think that's what we need. Whenever there's work that must be done, we always loaf through it. In fun, I know that we'd do better work if we would show some speed." They all piled in their truck again to ride a mile or so. And then they heard a funny snoring. "What is that?" one Tynymite cried. The Travel Men said, "I don't know, but we can find out if we go forward where the snoring came from. Surely something will be tried."

They rode a hundred yards or more and then found out what was in store. A great big elephant stood near. The snoring came from him, "Oh look!" cried Coppy. "If you please, he's helping pull down great big trees. His winding trunk must be real strong; the way he grabs a limb."

And he was absolutely right. The Tynymites saw a wonderful sight. The husky looking elephant was strong as he could be. He'd pull and snort and snort some more. The Tynymites thought that he was snoring, but 'twas his way of doing things. Then, down would come the tree.

(The Tynymites watch natives work on a bridge in the next story.) (Copyright 1931, NPA Service, Inc.)

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—One of the most familiar figures around Washington in both official and social circles is John Barton Payne, chairman of the National Red Cross.

Although he now is past the age of 75, that bent for hard work and winning personality which enabled him to lift himself from poverty to plenty and from obscurity to fame still is evident.

Back in the days when Payne was chairman of the shipping board he won for himself quite a reputation as a quick "Yes" and "No" man. That is, his decisions were made quickly and he would waste no time in explaining them.

Whenever Payne is mentioned, the story still is told in the capital of an encounter he had at one time with a visitor who thought him too abrupt.

Payne had had many dealings with the fellow, and when on this occasion he made a quick decision and abruptly closed the interview the caller felt that he had not been treated with the proper cordiality.

Payne Explains
As the story goes, he wrote Payne a letter in which he set forth his grievance. Payne's reply was typical of the man:

"I deeply regret," he wrote, "that the shortness of the day and the constant pressure of waiting people to be seen and their matters disposed of, made me manifest impatience to you after the subject to your visit had been disposed of."

"Indeed, the problem of how to end an interview when the subject matter is disposed of has elicited the attention of very wise people. I was in Liverpool a few years ago and was in the office of Sir William Jones, an active partner in the control of a number of steamship lines handling, among other things, bananas."

"Of course Sir William Jones had to see a great number of people. His constant practice was, when the interview properly came to an end to arise from his seat, take a banana conveniently supplied on his desk, and hand the banana to the visitor."

"That was accepted universally as the end of the interview."

Has No Bananas
"Unfortunately, I am not supplied with bananas, and having no very delightful method of ending an interview, I am sometimes guilty of a manifestation of impatience of which perhaps I am as sorry as the person who for the moment suffers."

"He, however, has this advantage: he suffers but once, while I have to suffer many times."

What effect this reply had on the aggrieved one is not a matter of record.

But it is typical of Payne whose life has been built on experiences as farm boy, country store clerk, lawyer, newspaper publisher, mayor, judge, government counsel, chairman of the shipping board, director general of railroads, secretary of the interior, special diplomatic envoy and now head of the far-flung philanthropic activities of the American Red Cross.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Finding peace in the midst of Manhattan's turbulent life is a rather difficult endeavor. At least, a couple of the town's better known dramatic critics have found it so.

One is Percy Hammond, who lives so far out on the Long Island shore that he requires a room in a Broadway hotel for the nights when he is in town to review a new play.

For some time the retiring Mr. Hammond has been harassed by the morning sounds of the hostilities he chooses. Try as he will, he has been unable to keep his exhausted slumbers uninterrupted.

The city seems intent upon disturbing him and he presumably remains restless until he drops, with a cavernous sigh of satisfaction, off a week-end train at Eastchester, where the only sound is a body of water.

Hermit

A reputation as a wit, added to other social graces, makes it even more difficult for the other veteran critic, Alexander Woolcott, to find time for his necessary labors.

Some months ago Mr. Woolcott discovered that when he had to turn out a particularly important piece of work the ringing of the telephone bell in his luxurious abode, overlooking the East river, kept him distracted—literally at "Wit's End," as he calls his apartment home.

So Woolcott, while not a monastic in temperament, hit upon the idea of going into a "retreat" at such times; of hiding out elsewhere and having his man servant inform callers by telephone or otherwise that he was away.

Now Woolcott's choice of a hide-away was somewhat unusual. It probably was dictated by hygienic tastes. For instead of immuring himself in a hermit's cell he elected a silky suite on an upper floor of the St. Regis, where he could be both solitary and comfortable.

All went well the first time and several times thereafter. So well, indeed, that the reclusive enthusiastically told several of his closest friends about it.

But certain of them just had to pass along the story of "Alec's latest whimsy."

So it happened that Woolcott, who had arranged to pass another season of retreat, was forced to telephone the management.

"I find," he said, "my plans have miscarried. Most of my friends now seem to know where I am when I go into these 'silences.'"

"This time I am going to dig in somewhere and tell nobody about it. I may have to wear a mask and disguise my voice, but nobody, nay, nobody is going to find me!"

Quits The Jailhouse
Which leaves me, as Woolcott would say, with exactly room enough to report that the Alimony club in the New York county jail is missing the operatic airs of Luigi Bambooschek, a Metropolitan conductor.

The airs were musical, of course, and enjoyable as play on a borrowed piano by Bambooschek.

Holiday spirit came along, however, the conductor promised to pay up, and the piano was silenced with the departure, leaving the other clubmen to their handball, bridge and miniature golf.

Barbs

The Boston police department has equipped itself with paraphernalia for detecting fake antiques. It takes a copper to know his brass.

The baseball moguls who have ordered heavier baseballs for the coming season reckon, no doubt, that it will be best in the long run.

Certain of our boxing champs are said to keep late hours. The ring game has come to a terrible pass when our fighters can't even hit the hay.

In Russia, where they have hounded Santa Claus, long-bearded natives are said to find it increasingly difficult to evade suspicion.

Paul Mellon, son of the treasury secretary, has decided to give up literature to work in his father's bank. Certainly he'll get more credit for whatever notes he writes.

Boston police may not be superstitious, but since being equipped with apparatus for detecting fake antiques, they've been doing a lot of knocking on wood.

NEW ENGLAND'S
THRIFT SHOWN
IN NEW REPORT

Per Capita Deposit of Eastern States Is $579, Treasury Reveals

BY WILLIAM BRUCKHART
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Washington—New England's traditional thrift is again exemplified in a document supplied by the treasury today, listing the per capita deposits in savings banks. Other sections of the country may lead in total bank deposits, in checking account totals and the like, but New England's six states remain at the top of the heap in savings with an average per capita deposit of $579.90, or about $176 per person more than any other group of states.

The treasury statistics show that on June 30 last approximately 8,100,000 persons who live in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut had combined savings deposits of $4,749,264,000. And that does not take into consideration whatever they might have put away in postal or special Christmas savings.

Indeed, three states in New England—Massachusetts with $640.09, Vermont with $569.87, and Connecticut with $560.63—had a higher average savings deposit than any others in the union.

The other three—Maine with $397.33, New Hampshire with $484.90, and Rhode Island with $534.52—were exceeded only by New York, which had an average per capita deposit of $448.59.

New York Total Leads
Although New York failed to gain the lead over all of the New England states on a per capita basis, its 12,672,000 persons had total savings deposits last June 30 of $6,450,000, an amount greater than all of the New England states combined. Due largely to the high average in New York, the eastern states, including New York, showed an average per capita savings of $499.96.

The 13 southern states fell to the lowest level of any. Their average per capita deposits in savings banks was only $33.57, yet none of the states in this group sank as low as New Mexico, which mustered only $24.54 in savings accounts for each of its citizens. New Mexico, along with North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Montana and Wyoming, constituting the western states, reported an average of $67.71 in savings per capita.

Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, in the middle western group, showed an average savings account of $177.73, an average held down by the low mark of $35.19 for Indiana. The Pacific coast states reported an average of $242.22.

Among these was California, with an average of $325.79, higher than any other state outside of New England excepting only New York.

Territories and possessions of the United States averaged $3.94 per capita in their savings although Hawaii had an average of $103.87 and Alaska reported $98.56. The 11,235,000 persons in the Philippines had an average saving of only $1.57 each.

The Board of Public Works has instructed me to prepare a report answering certain questions, hereinafter stated, on a basis of the data compiled from the 143 questionnaires sent out to various cities, to determine their experience with incineration.

Sixty-four cities returned the questionnaires and the conclusions here arrived at are drawn from a tabulation of their replies.

Question 1. Are the plants giving satisfaction? All but one report that they are satisfied with their plants. The reply from Hammond, Indiana states that they would not buy another plant of the same type, but otherwise express no dissatisfaction with this type of disposal.

Question 2. Do the plants live up to their rated capacity? All replies substantiated a reply in the affirmative.

Question 3. Average cost of collection. In some cities the cost of collection was combined with that of burning, and in a few cities the replies were indefinite and confusing. Taking an average from the majority of cities, the average appeared to be reasonable the average cost was determined as $2.25 a ton.

Question 4. Cost of burning in the various types of incinerators in which the city of Appleton has bids.

Nye—five a ton; Jones—$11.35 a ton; Pittsburgh Desmores—$1.04 a ton.

Replies were received from cities using the Municipal Incinerator and but one city reported using the Miller incinerator. About two-thirds of the cities that submitted replies are using a Nye incinerator. Many of the cities using the Nye incinerator are southern cities. As labor and fuel costs would probably be more in northern cities, an average was made using northern cities only. In this case the cost for the Nye was 75c a ton.

Question 5. Average percentage of garbage and rubbish. Replies to this question show a wide variation. On an average it appears that the tonnage of garbage is about twice the tonnage of rubbish, not considering ashes.

Respectfully submitted, L. M. SCHINDLER, City Engineer.

Alderman Packard moved to refer same to the Committee of the Whole. Motion carried.

Alderman Wassenberg moved that the council resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole. Motion carried.

The Committee of the Whole arose at 10:15 p. m. without a quorum. Alderman Packard moved that the council resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole. Motion carried.

Alderman Packard moved that the council resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole. Motion carried.

Alderman Richard moved to adjourn. Motion carried.

C. R. J. BECHER, City Clerk.

Richard Van Wyk and George Leemhuis acted as installing officers. A large attendance was present from Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna as well as Appleton. Music provided the entertainment after the business meeting and refreshments were served. A social committee to arrange for the next meeting was appointed and consisted of Arthur Malchow, Harold Newton, H. Brandt, Charles Winge, and E. Jeske.

Mrs. Eugene Pierce, Fourth-st., entertained the members of her bridge club Friday afternoon at her home. Prizes were won by Mrs. Joseph Mallory and Mrs. Howard Nussbaker. The date of the next meeting has not been decided.

Mrs. W. H. Killen, 238 E. Harrison-st. will be hostess to the Clio club at 7:30 Monday night at her home. Mrs. J. H. Tippet will have charge of the program on From the Civil War to the Treaty of Limerick.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS CONDUCT PEP SESSION

A short, snappy pep session was held at Appleton high school to stimulate interest in the West Green Bay basketball game here last night. Wally Moore, former Appleton high school cheer leader, gave a short speech and led the school yell. A short stunt was presented by James Eldridge, representing Green Bay; Marion Panskey, as victory; and Clark Carnes, as Appleton. Nothing of interest happened until the last quarter, when Appleton came to and took a shot at Green Bay with a shot gun and victory smiled knowingly upon Appleton. The class cheerleaders were called upon the platform to see how much yelling ability their classes possessed. The seniors proved to have the strongest lungs.

Leland Delforge and Norman Clapp told an interesting story of a band of teachers seated around the campfire.

FIND YOUR OWN SHADE OF ROUGE FOR OCCASIONS

BY ALICIA HART
Rouge is the first gesture a woman makes to beauty, after she has given herself a facial and applied her finishing foundation.

There are three general types of rouge, liquid rouge, powder rouge and cream. The liquid is very hard to apply, scientifically, the powder or compact rouge is not nearly so good for most skins as cream. That leaves cream rouge, which is the choice of skilled women who achieve the subtlest effects.

Cream rouge takes some time to work into the skin and blend with it. But it can be made to look very natural and that is the criterion of good make-up this winter.

A Matter of Choice
The shade of rouge you use is entirely up to you. Some dark women get good results with bright rouge and lipstick. Other fair women, blondes, achieve an exotic look with dark rouge. It can be obvious, which is not quite in good taste now, or it can be your own blood tone. An ancient and honorable way of coloring the face is to prick your finger, get a bit of blood and match it up.

Less strenuous is the method of exercising until you see what your natural cheek coloring would be if you had it all the time.
The bright raspberry red is the most popular of all daytime rouges. Most women can wear it. Older women can tone it down slightly with darker powder. Fair women carry it perfectly. If you are a very fair blonde, try the geranium red tone. If you have an olive complexion, use dark rouge. If you are older and do not want to seem to use rouge, but still need a little color in your cheeks, try an ashes-of-roses rouge. It may give you a suggestion of a healthy flush without being detectable.

Orange Seldom Used
Orange rouges are out. If a girl has a certain flamboyant red in her hair and a certain clear, transparent in her skin, the orange type of rouge may be what she really needs to make her ravishing. But for general wear, they belong to the deeply sun-tanned days of last year.
This winter, some women find that two rouges are better than one, but for evenings only. This is when they rouge and powder at home and as a last gesture before dancing or dining, they touch up once more with their cheeks.

First, choose your right rouge and then apply it correctly if you want to throw the glamor of beauty around yourself this winter.

NEXT: How to use rouge.

Help Child, Don't Stress Proper Way

BY ANGELO PATRI

It all happened because Betty tried too hard to be good. That is frequently the reason for school troubles in the little girls' classes. Little girls are likely to have over-stimulated consciences. One has to be careful not to press them on matters of morality and manners. It is better to go gently and wait. Time will straighten the crooked ways and make plain all that is not clear.

You see, Betty is seven. She listens gravely to all the corrections and advice given her. Mother's word is law. Teacher's word is law. All goes well and Betty is commended as a good child every Friday afternoon. Last Friday it happened. The teacher said, "Betty, did you get your report slip?" Betty grew rosy red and remained silent. The teacher repeated her question. Betty grew rosier and more silent, if that might be.

"Betty, I am talking to you. DID you get your report slip?" Betty choked miserably and nodded her head in affirmation. "That is no way to answer me," said Miss Hettie. "Say, Yes, ma'am. You know better than to stoke your head in answer to anyone. Say, Yes, ma'am."

And that strange child would not say a word. She nodded her head. She wept. But say Yes, ma'am, she would well, Betty Wood. You go home. And you get no report slip. Tell your mother that you behaved so badly that I would not let you have one. I'm very much surprised at your behavior. You have always been a very well-mannered child." At this Betty wailed aloud and Miss Hettie hastened to send her on her way.

"Oh, mother, mother, what shall I do? Miss Hettie is mad at me. She won't give me a good slip. She says I'm a bad girl. Oh, mother, mother, what shall I do?"
"Be quiet, Betty. You never were bad in your life. Tell me what happened."
"Oh, she asked me a question and I had to say Yes, ma'am, and you told me not to say Yes, ma'am, but to say Yes, Miss Hettie. And so I was afraid to say anything and she scolded me."
"By and by the perplexed teacher arrived to ask if anything ailed Betty and to describe her strange conduct."
"Oh, is that it? Why didn't she tell me?"

You see she couldn't tell it. To little girls, and a few little boys these seem to be a way out of such a dilemma. Authority must be respected even when it clashes. There is no way out, but the way of suffering and sorrow.

Try not to make your word a voice from Sinai. Leave room for another voice. When you have a child over-sensitive to authority keep on the free side. Try to teach them that all questions are not of equal importance, neither all words and words kindly, in friendly spirit and life will be easier for them.

WALL STREET SPECULATES ON RAIL MERGER

Permission to Consolidate Companies Results in Heavy Buying of Shares

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—While it is conceded that it may be a year or more before the eastern railroads are given permission to consolidate on the basis recently outlined, Wall Street is already speculating on the terms of exchange and the guarantees that may be arranged between the four major systems and the independent lines which are to be absorbed under the existing agreement.

This is the second phase of the merger development, which has already influenced heavy buying of railroad shares and advanced their average early Friday to a level nearly 12 points above that on Dec.
29 and 13 points above the low average for last year reached on Dec.
17.

Bankers for the eastern carriers have so far given only academic consideration to the question of financing involved in the consolidation. They believe there will be plenty of time to think this matter over, for they see ahead months of delay before authority to merge is granted by the interstate commerce commission and congress gives its consent.

"If and when" the merger goes into effect, control of independent lines will be arranged through exchanges of stocks rather than by the issuance of bonds.

Small Mileage Involved

The statistical picture of the four systems, as they will appear under the new plan and as prepared by Congressman Parker, chairman of the interstate commerce committee of the house, indicates the relatively small mileage involved in the reallocation of roads in the eastern territory. Consequently, the element of financing in connection with a proposition that concerns 53,000 miles of line and a property investment of nearly $10,000,000,000 is not as important as at first appears. In the "set-up" that has been made by Mr. Parker, the roads to be acquired by the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate systems aggregate approximately 45,000 miles, or slightly less than 30 per cent of the total mileage represented in the completed system.

A high proportion, however, of the roads to be acquired is already in the possession of the four systems through stock ownership. For instance, the new mileage of the Baltimore & Ohio is given as 5,466 miles.

Includes Smaller Roads

It includes that of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and the Buffalo & Susquehanna, both roads now owned by the Baltimore & Ohio, of the Western Maryland, in which the Baltimore & Ohio has a controlling interest; of the Chicago & Alton, which it has recently purchased and whose authority to hold was again sustained by the court Thursday; and the Reading, in which the Baltimore & Ohio has a 40 per cent stock interest. Out of the total miles to be acquired, only about 10 per cent represent mileage of properties in which the Baltimore & Ohio has at present no financial concern.

In the Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel
Plate system as proposed, 3,047 additional miles are to be acquired. In this case a high percentage will be subject to negotiations between the Van Sweringen interests and those who now hold control of the Bessemer & Lake Erie, the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Lehigh Valley.

It is understood the Nickel Plate Management some time ago completed arrangements for possession of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

To the present, Pennsylvania system of 11,235 miles are to be added 5,263 miles of lines classed as those "to be acquired" and represented by the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, the Washakie and the Norfolk & Western. In these three roads the Pennsylvania, either directly or through subsidiaries, now holds the major interest.

Central Adds One

The only addition to the New York Central system of any importance is that of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, about 1,000 miles of line, in which the New York Central has a minority interest directly through purchases by a subsidiary company and where the majority holdings of the stock are in hands entirely friendly to the Vanderbilt road.

In brief, the major financing in connection with the merger when it is finally approved will only involve the purchase of the New York Central holdings in the Reading by the Baltimore & Ohio, such agreement as the Pennsylvania and the Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate interests may make over the Lehigh Valley, and the necessary increase by the New York Central in the percentage of its stock ownership in the Lackawanna. Obviously, most of these arrangements will be made through private negotiations. The nature of them, however, may from time to time be suggested in the movements of the shares of carriers to be acquired.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

Dear Miss Vane: I married very young and have worked hard ever since my marriage. I have helped my husband to save money and stood by him in every way even when he made one or two mistakes. Now I have three dear little girls and I am with them most of the time. My husband refuses to take me anywhere. He acts as if he is ashamed of his family. He is seldom at home. When he does come home, he never suggests entertaining me, or appreciating me. He will take other people out with him but is never interested in making me happy. When I tell him how lonely I am, he makes fun of me. Sometimes I am tempted to accept other invitations.—K. R.

Your husband seems to be a pretty average sort of selfish pest. It is incredible that man could accept a woman's love and help and sympathy for a number of years and never feel called on to give anything in return.
This type of selfishness can seldom be cured either, but you can have a try at it.

To begin with, try to depend on other people for entertainment. You can't very well accept invitations if you have to stay home with your three small children, but you can invite people to come to your home.
There is no reason why you should not have friends of your own if your husband denies you the pleasure of his society and shows no more interest in you than if you were a piece of furniture.

Try to show him that you consider him quite apart and separate from your life—that you do not intend to cling to him for companionship and sympathy, any more. He's grown so used to you and to the knowledge that you're always at home, waiting for him to come back, that he's ceased to regard you as a human being. Give him to understand that he's dealing with a real personality.

Whether he pays attention or not,
make a point of looking him over occasionally, and a great deal of time on your part. It may make him one of those men who "wonder what he has a woman at home."

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

CORRINNE wanted Harry to speak as she finished her explanation of the emerald transaction with Clifford Becker.
When he only stood quietly, she reached into the dressing table and pulled out two small packages.

"Here they are, Harry. You can see for yourself that I was telling the truth."

Harry didn't examine them. "I am willing to take your word. I'm sorry that you didn't trust me enough to confide in me in the first place. Our marriage has been rather
... the bunk, hasn't it?"

"Oh, no, Harry, no! Why, I love you more than anything in the world! You know I do!"

"This is evidence of it," Harry answered. "What have you to say, Clifford?"

"Nothing! But if a girl would double-cross me on a deal like this I'd hate to be her husband and have to believe her. Well, I'm checking out tonight."

He banged the door as he left and Corrinne tried to look at Harry and couldn't.

The rest of the conversation was mad blarney to Corrinne when she tried to think of it later. She knew that Harry did become furlous after that; the iciness melted away before sudden fire, and she knew that she flamed, too. Harry was in one of the guest rooms, and the clock was ticking away as steadily as though nothing could ever upset the rhythm of its regularly recurring beats.

She slept a little, got up in the morning and put on her dark brown dress because all the world had lost its color, Harry came down to break fast, evidently more composed, too.

He didn't talk, except once when he asked for the salt and pepper shakers in a cool, courteous voice.

enough friends to keep her quite happy and satisfied without him.

C. D.: If a satisfactory arrangement can be made about the children I think you two ought to have your freedom as soon as possible. It isn't fair for either of you to drag out your lives together, when there is so much misery on both sides. But you don't seem to realize that there will be considerable trouble over the question of the children, and you must certainly face that problem before deciding anything definite.

Are you willing to give up your children for part of every year? Do you trust your husband to take good care of them in the interval while you are not permitted to have them?
You must remember all the time that they are not in the least to blame for the situation between yourself and your husband and that therefore they must not pay the penalty for the mistakes you two have made.

Be sure that you're giving them a fair deal, before you decide to take your own happiness. You won't really be happy, if you know that your babies are suffering because of your decision. As a conscientious mother, you'd worry about them most of the time and your fear and doubt and anxiety would spoil your chances of happiness with your new love.

Think over this angle of the situation carefully before you take a definite step. And don't mince matters. Don't tell yourself that things will come out all right in the end. You can perhaps convince yourself now that your happiness is more important than anything else. But in the long run, you'll pay for it hard, if you sacrifice your children.
(Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Newspapers)

Finally Corrinne couldn't stand it any longer.

"Harry, if you would throw the china at me, or take a rolling pin, or beat me up or do something, I'd feel better!" The words came in a rush. "I'm sorry ... can't you believe me ... honestly I am! I never mean to get into that jam. I never meant to do things. Oh, I don't blame you! I'm not sensible and sweet like Sue ..."

"Let's leave Sue out of it," Harry answered coldly. "She doesn't concern out welfare or happiness. Get this straight, Corrinne. You're the one I'm in love with. And well ... this will blow over in time perhaps."

"But you'll be afraid you can't trust me again. That's what hurts!"

"I'll trust you. You don't need to worry about that, since I happen to be a big enough fool to ... go on."

"Harry, I'll grow up. I'll be dignified and staid and sober. Honestly I will." And she was sobbing against his coat in a minute. But even then it seemed to her, although she only sensed it indirectly, that something spontaneous and lovely was gone. That a hurt masqueraded under a courteous mask.

After Harry had gone, Corrinne wandered around the house. She went into the room which Clifford had occupied and the sight of a small white box reminded her that his headache excuse had been very weak.

She sat down and tried to figure out what connections he could have had with Sybil Lester, but decided that her imagination was working overtime. She realized that even Sybil might have some knowledge of the robbery it was too much to implicate Clifford. She could be honest, anyway.

The telephone rang with sudden sharpness that brought her back to routine.

NEENAH QUINT WINS OPENER FROM DE PERE

Turns in 27 to 13 Victory to Open Conference Schedule for 1931

Neenah—The high school basketball team opened its conference season here Friday evening by defeating West De Pere 27 and 13. A full house witnessed the opener. Coach Jorgenson started the game with three of last year's state championship team, Barnes, Johnson and Schmidt, in the lineup, with Ellis, a new man in school, and Bell. The combination worked well. Barnes was replaced by Hire during the game. In the last few minutes when a new team, Gaertner, Kuehl, Thomack, Metternick and Thompson, was placed upon the floor. Captain Schmidt, playing right forward, was high scorer, securing seven points from three field goals and a free throw. Close behind him was Co-Captain Johnson with six points, made on two field goals and two free throws. Block and Hire each secured four points while Bell and Barnes each counted three points. Johnson started the scoring with a free throw and Barnes made the first field goal early the quarter. W. De Pere was held scoreless throughout the first half, Van Sisten, with seven points made on three baskets and one free throw, was high point maker for the losing team. B. The West De Pere team has played its fifth game on its schedule, losing to all but Gillett.

Neenah's next game will be next Friday evening with New London at the high school gymnasium.

MENASHA FIVE IS SWAMPED BY OCONTO, 33 TO 7

Victors Present Strong Defense Which Losers Cannot Penetrate

Menasha—Led by the fast moving Winthrop twins, Oconto high school basketball team swamped the Menasha cagers, 33 to 7, at Butte des Morts gymnasium Friday evening. A Winthrop, one of the twins, personally accounted for six field goals and a free throw for 13 points in about three quarters of play.

Although playing hard, the Menasha squad was unable to penetrate the Oconto defense, and scored only one field goal during the entire game. Asmus's successful free throw in the initial period accounted for the only Menasha marker in the first half, while Oconto scored 13 points.

A Winthrop started his scoring spree almost immediately after the beginning of the game when he dropped a field goal through the hoop at close range. Asmus scored for Menasha on a free throw, but if Wint retaliated with a field goal and Cashman repeated the performance immediately afterward. Lanzer replaced Grade at forward for Menasha, but A. Winthrop eluded the new comer and scored on a long, arching shot from almost the center of the floor. He scored again after dribbling in close, as the quarter ended.

With a 10 to 1 advantage already established, the visitors continued a killing pace that netted an additional eight points before the close of the half. A Winthrop dropped another field goal and his brother at forward repeated. The third Winthrop scored the third field goal of the period and after a basket by Cashman, the half ended with Menasha on the short end of an 18 to 1 count.

It looked like a Menasha rally as the second half opened when Becker for Menasha, eluded the Oconto defense and arched a shot through the net. A series of fouls gave Oconto four free shots at the hoop and three of them counted. The third period ended as H. Winthrop brought the count to 23 to 3 for the visitors.

In the fourth quarter, Menasha scored on four free throws, three tossed by Becker and one by Asmus. The Winthrop twins went in for Oconto after resting during the third quarter and immediately began a spurt that led the visitors to an addition 10 points before the close of the game. Erdlitz of Wisconsin was referee.

The lineup:

Because so many applicants were turned away on the final day, a similar clinic will be held late in May or early in June officials stated. The examiners were brought to the city under auspices of the Menasha Health council and the Winnebago Medical association.

Of the 125 examined, 19 were placed in the tuberculosis classification. Six

KAUKAUNA FIVE WINS, 21 TO 19, IN FIRST GAME

Comes from Behind in Last Period to Take Victory from Clintonville

Kaukauna — After trailing Clintonville high school for three periods, Kaukauna high school basketball team came to the front and managed to take out a 21 to 19 victory in its opening game in the Northwestern Wisconsin interscholastic league Friday evening at Clintonville.

Farwell netted the first basket, but Monty and Shepard followed to put Clintonville into a lead. Sager then added a point on a free throw while Smith dropped in one more marker for Clintonville, giving them a 6 to 3 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The next quarter the Orange and Black team started going and played Clintonville even, but still trailed by three points at half time. The score was 12 to 9.

Both teams played a tight defensive game in the third quarter and at the end of the period Kaukauna had cut down the lead of Clintonville to one basket while the Kaws pulled up their score to 13.

The local team came back strong in the final quarter and two baskets by VanLieshout put them in the lead. Clintonville then tied the score 19 all. A basket by Sager gave Coach P. Little's team a one basket lead with just a few minutes left to play. Clintonville tried desperately to score but failed to do so.

SERIAL PORTRAYS THRILL OF CIRCUS

Picture Is Sponsored by Warner Brothers Kiddie Club in City

"The Spell of the Circus" thrill serial now being shown every Saturday morning at Warner's Appleton theatre.

Picture is sponsored by Warner Bros. Kiddie club and is giving local children the thrill of their lives.

The thrill of the circus! A stirring story of life under the big top and the backstage life of its performers are vividly portrayed in the Universal ten episode chapter play "The Spell of the Circus."

The story involves the struggle for ownership of "The Big Circus" and the intrigue of love and adventure developing from the battle for the hand of a beautiful girl.

Every phase and angle of the circus is brought out in this picture—the glamor and brilliance of the parade—the comedy touches of the clowns—the daring performance of the horsemanship riders, the acrobats, and trapeze actors—and particularly the drama played between the canvas walls of the tents never seen by the cheering crowds.

Universal has brought to the screen a thoroughly entertaining story, clean and wholesome, teeming with adventure and thrills. Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and Al. Herta Vaughn were selected to play the featured roles, with a fine supporting cast including Tom London, Marie Montague, Bobby Nelson, Charles Murphy and Walter Shumway.

Robert F. Hill, one of the outstanding directors of motion pictures, "handled" the picturization for Universal.

A complete circus was established at Universal City for the filming of the story written for the screen by Ian McClosky Heath and filmed under the supervision of Henry MacRae.

STREET CAR HITS TWO GIRLS; THEY'RE UNHURT

Chicago — (AP) — A street car was rumbling down a street Thursday when two little girls stepped in front of it. The motorman, Claude Hughes, jammed on the brakes, but was too late. The car passed over the children.

Hughes ran to a telephone and called the police. The police in turn notified the fire department. Soon a police ambulance, a wrecking truck and a trouble wagon of the street car company were on the scene. The men concluded the car would have to be jacked up.

At the end of an hour or more of work Elaine Rosenkranz, 6, and Lorraine Dobmeier, 5, crawled out, with a couple of scratches but otherwise unhurt.

TRY AND PROVE IT

The prisoner was on trial on a charge of burglary. He protested his innocence and pleaded an alibi. "But do you know what an alibi is?" asked the judge.

"Yes, my lord," replied the prisoner. "An alibi is proving that you was in one place when you was in another." —Tit-Bits.

THE GREAT AMERICAN VALUE

At the National Automobile Shows

Chevrolet wins first place for the fourth time

First place at the National Automobile Shows—a position granted on the basis of annual sales volume—is again awarded to Chevrolet.

This is the fourth consecutive time that Chevrolet has achieved this honor. And the reason lies in the exceptional value which Chevrolet cars consistently provide.

This year, in its bigger and better Six, Chevrolet is offering an outstanding example of the value which has brought it such record success.

Hit by "Spring Fever"

Golf supplies the motivation for "Love in the Rough," in which Robert Montgomery is featured by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The musical comedy, directed by Charles F. (Chuck) Reisner, will open at the Elite theatre for 3 days, starting Monday, with the cast including Dorothy Jordan, Benny Rubin, Dorothy McNulty and J. C. Nugent.

JANNINGS OFFERS SENSATIONAL ROLE

Marlene Dietrich Appears as Co-star in "The Blue Angel"

A rare treat is in store for audiences at the Fox Theatre. Emil Jannings who achieved premier renown in American—Made silent pictures as a Character Actor, will be seen and heard in his first all-talking at the Fox Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Great Jannings is seen as a good and righteous professor in a high school in a German City. But he learns by chance, several of his pupils have been visiting the "Blue Angel Cafe," he decides to catch them in this forbidden waterfront cabaret and thus he meets Marlene Dietrich a gorgeous creature, the favorite of the cafe.

Beset by a romantic impulse such as he had never in his life before experienced, Jannings becomes enamored of this lovely blonde dancer. She thinks that she loves him. But when news of the alliance gets to the school the boys ridicule their erstwhile teacher so heartily that the school authorities, seeing Jannings' delinquency of respectability, fire him from his job.

The undoing of a man has begun. The rest of the picture carries Jannings through a series of colorful, if not happy adventures. The climax is one of the most astonishing dramatic moments the talking screen has ever seen.

"The Blue Angel" is dynamic drama. It tears the very fibres of the heart.

Emil Jannings voice will thrill you, a more powerful Jannings you hear him speak for the first time. It is soul-searching drama. You'll talk about it, think about it, long after its last tense scene fades from the screen. Don't fail to see Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich in the "Blue Angel."

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Geo. Walter Brewing Co. will be held at its office on Tuesday, January 20, 1931 at 7:30 P. M. for the election of a Board of Directors for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before such meeting.

NEW LEADING LADY FOR BUDDY ROGERS

"Along Came Youth" Is Sparkling, Romantic Comedy of Gay Life

Charles Rogers is in love with a stranger. That is, he will be in love with a stranger when "Along Came Youth" comes to the Fox Theatre on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 15, 16.

Young Rogers, for the purposes of screen entertainment, of course, was in love with his old friend of "Close Harmony," Nancy Carroll, when they both played in "Follow Through." He was in love with his old friend of "Someone to Love," Mary Brian, in "River of Romance."

Now in "Along Came Youth," Buddy has a new leading lady—a stranger, if you will, with whom he never was seen before on the screen. Her name is Frances Dee. She is brunette, and is very pretty.

"Along Came Youth" furnishes her with her second featured role. Her first was with Maurice Chevalier in "Playboy of Paris."

In this picture, Rogers will be seen as a young American sportsman who is stranded without funds or the means of getting them in London. By accident he meets Miss Dee, a scion of an aristocratic but impoverished British family, and falls in love with her. The climax of the picture carries Rogers astraddle his favorite horse, which he rides to win an exciting steeple chase and to regain his lost fortune.

Others in the cast of this sparkling romance-comedy of gay life and exciting society events are Stuart Erwin, who appeared with Rogers as the befuddled fellow-soldier in "Young Eagles," Betty Boyd, who was a Vampas baby star in 1929; Leo White, old-time comedy partner of Charlie Chaplin, and a number of other talented players.

LOWE WELCOMES BRAND NEW ROLE IN LOVE BUSINESS

Appears as Irascible Husband With Leila Hyams in "Part Time Wife"

Love making, on the screen, is a ticklish business. It requires more tact, more subtlety and finesse than the average man cares to bring to his personal love affairs. Because he has given to his film characterization these essential requirements, Edmund Lowe long ago, mastered a perfect love making technique.

It has worked amiable in all of his love roles, but for his latest Fox movie, domestic comedy, "Part Time Wife," which comes to the Fox Theatre Sunday, January 11, he was confronted with the problem of bringing realistically, to the screen, the worries and embarrassments of a nervous young husband.

Leila Hyams, in the title role, had eagerly anticipated her wedding anniversary for weeks. But she had not figured on business details up-setting her husband's temper, nor on his forgetting the beautiful sentiment of their wedding day.

Unfortunately this came to pass, resulting in Lowe's return from his office like an enraged tiger. Naturally, the customary family argument followed at the table, after which both parties, their pride and vanity, called their lawyers, each hoping the other would relent.

"Can you imagine a more perfect setting for the start of a hilarious domestic comedy?" This was director Leo McCarey's query the first day he outlined the drama to Lowe and Miss Hyams. "And we will go on from the good beginning to an even more realistic ending. Why, there's a mine of rich dramatic material in such a situation, and it is up to us to bring it out."

Others taking prominent roles in the cast are Tommy Clifford, Walter McGrath, Sam Lufkin, Louis Payne, Edil Rosing, and George Corcoran.

RED-HEAD PLAYS FAST AND FUNNY ROMANTIC FARCE

"It" Girl Falls Into One Difficulty After Another in France

"Her Wedding Night," the fast and funny Avery Hopwood farce which opens a three day run at WARNER'S APPLETON THEATRE tomorrow, might have been written expressly for Clara Bow, for in it, the red-headed star has a role that fits her personality and talents to a "T." "Her Wedding Night" is pure, light-hearted fun. "Her Wedding Night" is jolly and pseudo-serious. "Her Wedding Night" tells of the adventures of a red-haired movie star on vacation in Paris and of her flight to escape her suitors. What could be more Clara Bow than that? Clara Bow's youthful, light-hearted, love-thrilling appeal is at its best in farce comedy of this kind, in which not a moment of real serious drama enters. Clara, on her mad flight to the south of France to escape her self-styled sweethearts, is mistaken for an eloping bride. Skeets Gallagher, traveling under an assumed name to help out his friend, Ralph Forbes, a popular popular-song writer, is mistaken for an eloping bridegroom. Before either of them knows what is happening, they are married by an ambitious and obliging small-town mayor, and, as Skeets uses his assumed name in signing the marriage register, which he mistakes for a hotel register, Clara finds herself wedded to a man she has never met.

When Clara and Forbes meet each other as man and wife, things start to happen. Charlie Ruggles, the incomparable comedian of "Queen High" and other hits, complicates every situation, aided by a bevy of Parisian beauties, in the persons of Geneva Mitchell, Rosita Moreno and Natalie Kingston. But this strange marriage, which seems headed for the Parisian divorce court introduces a Venetian honeymoon.

MONTGOMERY, JORDAN IN "LOVE IN ROUGH"

Robert Montgomery, featured player, and Dorothy Jordan, who appears opposite him, make their bow as a romantic team in "Love in the Rough." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's musical comedy picturization of the play, "Spring Fever," at the Elite Theatre 3 days starting Monday.

Altogether, it is an auspicious debut for the popular young players. The picture is a highly entertaining vehicle and they present a delightful twosome as the hero and heroine of a charming little golf romance.

In directing the picture from the adaptation of the Vincent Lawrence play, Charles F. (Chuck) Reisner turned out a sparkling production, brimming over with tuneful music, snappy dialog and hilarious comedy, not to forget the heart interest which supplies its principal story ingredient. The golf background will bring this film nearer and dearer to many followers of the mashie, and nibble.

Benny Rubins is chief among the funsters who provide merriment and hilarity in the picture. Benny is paired with Dorothy McNelly in a comedy romance that closely follows Montgomery and Miss Jordan through the film.

Separated for Time Being

Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams in Fox movie comedy "Part Time Wife" Fox Theatre at the preview midnight show and Sunday only.

FATE BUFFETS GIRL, BUT SHE FINALLY WINS

A girl of the people—buffeted by Fate until she scarcely knows where to turn, finally appealing to the law to secure the justice she seeks for herself and her child—facing the bitter disappointment of finding legal technicalities barring the way—and then to have a surprising revelation bring her back some of the happiness she craved—that is the basic theme of "Common Clay," the gripping Fox movie offering which comes to the Elite Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

Constance Bennett, fresh from her triumphs in "Son of the Gods" and "This Thing Called Love," plays the feminine lead in this unusual production, which has won the enthusiastic approbation of critics and public wherever it has been shown.

Lew Ayres, the young sensation of "All Quiet on the Western Front," has the leading masculine part, and Tully Marshall, Beryl Mercer, Matty Kemp and Hale Hamilton head the distinguished supporting cast. Victor Fleming directed the picture from Jules Furthman's screen version of Cleves Kinhead's famous play.

"Common Clay" was the Harvard prize play which brought fame to its author. It was an outstanding Broadway success, with Jane Cowell in the principal role. The screen version follows the plot of the original play very closely.

"DOUGHBOYS" AN ARMY OF LAUGHS

Buster Keaton Hilarious Rookie in His Latest Side-splitter

Gunpowder and laughs are mixed in an hilarious blend in "Dough Boys," Buster Keaton's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking comedy at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday. Buster is seen as Elmer Stuyvesant, millionaire's son, who goes to an employment agency with the intention of engaging a chauffeur. He is unaware, however, that the agency has been turned into a recruiting station, and before he knows what it's all about finds himself divested of his high silk hat and cutaway coat in favor of less elegant khaki garments. Sent to the front, the new

"doughboy" blunders through innumerable comic mistakes and situations against a background of battle scenes staged on a spectacular scale. The unusual idea of war thrills used as a contrast to Keaton's laughable antics makes for comedy of more than ordinary entertainment and has been extremely well handled by Edward Sedgwick the director.

Sally Eilers makes a charming heroine in the role of a war entertainer who inspires Keaton to posterous acts of bravery. Cliff Edwards, Victor Pote, Fitz Katz and Arnold Korff form a lively group of assistant laughgetters, Cliff, of course, taking his ukulele to war. He sings an attractive new number called "Sing," which will undoubtedly be heard on every radio in the country before long. A second number, "Mister Military Man," is sung by a soldier chorus.

One of the funniest sequences of the picture portrays a "camp show" in which the soldiers take feminine parts, appearing in an oddly assorted

REAL STAGE THRILLER COMING TO THEATRE

A number of the most hair raising situations ever shown on the talking screen are included in "The Cat Creeps," the mystery drama which starts its regular run at Warner's Appleton Theatre next Wednesday and will also be shown at the midnight show tonight. The justice of this contention may be realized when it is revealed that the picture is the screen adaptation of the famous stage thriller, "The Cat and the Canary."

Amusing incidents aboard the transport, in dugouts and trenches and in "No Man's Land" and spectacular battle scenes mark the production, but every scene has its quota of laughs. "Dough Boys" is one of Keaton's best comedies to date.

Chapter 23
SEEDS OF DISCORD
DAVID had promised to take Fanny to Emily Bennett's Halloween party on the night of October 31, the night Bob Daniels had told Fanny he planned to run away.

They were to go in costume and David liked to dress up. Tonight would be the first time he had taken her anywhere in weeks. Fanny, dining home alone that afternoon from the Country Club, felt happy at the prospect.

Fanny had always loved the romantic old Bennett place, built and planted long before the Civil war. It seemed to her more French than American. The house was a miniature chateau and the great park with its long avenues of poplars and cedars, its clipped hedges, marble seats, might easily be imagined as the retreat of a king's favorite. The place was made for love; tonight the moon was full. Oh to be young and in love and happy again! Even in the daylight the little sunken garden back of the house was so beautiful it brought a lump to Fanny's throat. What would it be in the enchanted light of the harvest moon?

David ought to be pleased. She not only hadn't seen Bob Daniels alone for several days—she hadn't seen him at all. It was silly and stupid of her to feel so piqued and hurt that Bob had not made an occasion to say good-by. It seemed to her at least to wish Bob luck, to tell him again how much good it had done her to rattle on to him to her heart's content. She wanted, too, to assure him that his understanding and sympathy (no matter how exaggerated) had brought her a new courage and hopefulness.

Why, with only a little courage, even a wavering backbone, she might easily seize the reins from Mrs. Frost. Fanny was suddenly very sure of herself. Bob or no Bob she meant to go on asserting her rights. She was smiling when she came in the front door.

As usual at that hour Mrs. Frost was sitting at the library table absorbed in the evening paper. The full, dark, heavy-lidded eyes looked for a moment at Fanny—at her and through her.

"Good evening," she seemed to bite at the period—bite and hold onto it. Fanny, to her intense disappointment and chagrin, found herself trembling. Mrs. Frost was constantly on guard—always watching to see when she came in. One look and it seemed to Fanny that a numbingly horrible something flowed from her mother-in-law to her—like an ectoplasm. It was as if any icy hand touched her heart, her will. In unreasoning panic Fanny turned and fled up the stairs two at a time.

David had returned early to get a much-needed nap, and been wakened by his mother with sighs and complaints of her loneliness.

"It's been a gorgeous day—why didn't you get out?" he asked. "Fanny has the car; I cannot afford to pay $5 every time I might like a drive."

"It's only 50 cents to go over to Cousin Emmeline's; she has a car; why didn't you ask her over here?" "You know why. But you have requested me not very politely to hold my tongue on that subject."

She was referring of course to his Cousin Emmeline's active resentment at Fanny for upholding Bob against Leila. Fanny had done nothing wrong, of course, but she was no child. Why couldn't she conduct herself so as not to be talked about? This afternoon he had learned that Fanny had overdrew again at the bank—in spite of repeated promises to keep within her generous allowance.

David had barely composed himself to a half tense drowsiness when Fanny flounced into the room. David jerked himself instantly to a sitting position, lay down again quickly.

"What is the matter?" he growled. "Nothing," said Fanny unconvincingly, and laughed a trifle hysterically. "If you don't mind going some place else—I should like a little sleep."

"Oh, I'm so sorry, poor David," she tiptoed across the room, every board creaking. It was not until she had her hand on the nursery door that she remembered that Sheila was spending the night with her new love, little Margaret Philbrick. It was the first time Sheila had ever asked to sleep away from home. "It will be nice having me home again, won't it, Mother?" she had inquired anxiously when Fanny stopped at the gate.

"The very nicest thing in the whole world, sweetest," Fanny had assured her. Fanny was so determinedly good-natured, so sweetly patient, that David, in a mood to quarrel, quite naturally was more irritated and irritable than ever. He had made up his mind on the way home not to speak th evening of Fanny's overdraft at the bank. But now he brought the matter up.

"You know how embarrassing it is to—"

"Oh, did I overdraw?" faltered Fanny. "I figured and figured—I was sure I had money to meet all my checks. I'll make it good out of my next month's allowance. Let's not talk about it any more tonight. We have to get dressed for the party."

"You're keeping something back," he accused. "It's there's anything that exasperates me it's that—and you know it."

"Very well," sighed Fanny. "I didn't want to tell you tonight, but I've been fearfully silly. I got in a poker game at the club and I didn't know much about the game or the difference between the chips—and the first thing I knew I had lost $500."

"You mean to say you were fool enough to let that bunch of sharpers fleeced you out of $500?" "Then you haven't paid for your clothes—your last month's bills?" "Not yet. But I'll pay them off month by month."

"Do you suppose I want the news going round that my wife can't pay her bills? How much do you owe exactly?" "About—about $500 more."

"A thousand dollars in one month! Do you know how hard I have to work for $1,000?" "Yes," said Fanny and began to cry. Bob had pleaded with her to let him pay those I. O. U's. It was all his fault, he said, and no one need ever know but themselves. Bob was human and understanding, because he was a sinner like herself—made mistakes as she did. Bob was the only one, the only one in the world who understood and was kind to her. And he was going away....

David now regretted his harshness, but he told himself stubbornly that Fanny had played the fool and that it was fair and right that she should learn to pay for her mistakes, as he had learned to pay for his. Not that she really would pay—it was he who would have to advance the money she had thrown away, and dollars to doughnuts that Fanny would never get around to paying him back.

As he shaved he went over his wrongs, marshaling up forgotten grievances to stiffen his righteous anger, for a nasty little voice, kept insisting that he had been an unconscionable brute; Fanny had been so happy this morning, so sweet about his going to the party.

"Every nice thing is twice as nice if you share it," she had said. Fanny had counted on this party for days—counted on going with him—had made herself a gray dress at his suggestion. But it was a forlorn and drooping Fanny he found waiting in her sitting room, in spite of the bright dress and make-up.

"I'm sorry, Fan," David said gruffly. "I've been in a brute of a humor all Car. I'll pay for the clothes—let's forget it."

"I prefer to pay for them myself." "They went downstairs, got into the car, made the five-mile drive without further word.

Fanny's tears had left their natural aftermath. She felt bruised and sore, enveloped in a black and unreasoning despair. Everything she did was wrong; no matter how hard she tried she only upset David and added to his troubles; even Sheila was happy away from her.

David tortured himself for years asking himself what would have happened if he had let the matter of the overdraft go till morning. But we are getting ahead of our chronicle. (Copyright, 1931 by Matel Howe Farnham)

Stung by David's outburst, Fanny is ripe for the misadventure that tempts her in tomorrow's chapter.

NEW LONDON IN 24-20 WIN OVER SHAWANO QUINT

Red and White Squad Takes Early Lead and Maintains It Throughout Game

New London—Coach Stacy's basketball team opened up the conference season Friday evening with a decisive win over Shawano, 24 to 20. During the first half the visitors were held to one basket and two free throws, while New London ran up 14 points. Shawano came back strong in the third quarter, creeping within seven points of the Red and Whites. While New London's playing is still ragged, the defense forced Shawano to try shots from beyond the foul line. Ladwig and Dernbach played a fast game at guard. Dingy also broke through for two baskets, while Westphal shoved the ball through seven times. Pfeiffer followed with five field goals.

Raby was in all of the plays, but chose to feed the ball to either Pfeiffer or Westphal, getting only one basket during the game, on a long throw from the center of the floor. Raby also had two free throws.

Westphal opened up the scoring column when he dropped a one handed shot through the hoop. The Indians came back, tied the score, only to have Dernbach break through to give the local lead, which they maintained during the remainder of the evening. Pfeiffer missed again, but shot Dernbach also missed on the rebound and the crowd saw Pfeiffer bat the ball through the hoop. Chuck counted a second later when Raby fed him the ball underneath the basket. Just before the quarter-ended Shawano added a point on a free throw, and Westphal unhooked another one handed shot. Ladwig opened up the second quarter when he fouled a Shawano player, who made his last basket.

Lead at Half

Dernbach and Westphal both got in pretty side shots to bring the score 14-4 at the half.

Pfeiffer got away in the second half when he made two baskets in quick succession. Shawano followed with two baskets and a free throw. Prusick, center, for the visitors, got past Ladwig to make an easy basket. Westphal added another basket and on the next play let Prusick again get past with an easy shot. The third quarter ended with Shawano making two more baskets while Raby made two points on free throws, and Westphal pushed the ball through for his sixth field goal of the evening. Pfeiffer followed suit by making a long shot and one of the Shawano guards duplicated this feat for his side. Pfeiffer made his last basket of the evening when he and Raby worked the ball down the floor. Raby got in his lone point of the evening at this point, which was a pretty shot from the center of the floor. Just before the game ended New London pulled some fast playing on a pass out and Westphal ended the scoring.

Tangen, of Lawrence, refereed the game, which was followed by a dance, music being furnished by the high school orchestra. A good sized crowd witnessed the game, which was opened by a preliminary game between the two second teams of New London and Shawano. Shawano won out in this by a 15 to 10 score.

MUTUAL FIRE RISK COMPANY HAS MEETING

Members Adopt Measure Against Oil Burners in Brooder Houses

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction—A safety measure aimed at obliterating heaters in poultry brooder houses was adopted by the annual meeting of the Farmers' Equity Mutual Fire Insurance company at the town hall here Thursday. A resolution amending the by-laws providing that buildings in which oil-burning devices are employed in warming chickens or other fowls must be 40 or more feet from other insured properties, was the principal item of business transacted besides the consideration of the annual report and the reelection of directors.

About 40 policy holders from parts of Brown, Calumet, Manitowoc and Outagamie-counties attended the meeting. The company had 1,483 policies effective at the close of 1930 involving a risk of $8,896,750. The annual report further showed receipts during the last calendar year which included $26,635.51 for assessments and $117 for policy fees. Losses paid during the past year amounted to $7,919.87. Aggregate losses during 1929-30 of organization were $110,106.98.

Directors reelected were William Vollmer of Hilbert, president; H. C. Ullrich, Brillion, secretary-treasurer; John Zimmerman, Reedsville, and John P. Otto and John Seybold, Forest Junction.

Elect Officers
The Sunday school board of Zion Evangelical church effected the annual renewal of its official personnel at a quarterly session at the church Thursday evening. Pianists, choristers and librarians in the adult, young people's and children's divisions of the school were reappointed.

A new program committee was elected, consisting of Mrs. Ira Loefer, chairman, Edwin Seybold and Mrs. Edward J. Franke.

The designation of June 14, as the annual children's day and July 4 for the customary patriotic observance and arrangements for the installation of new coat and hat racks in the Sunday school rooms were among the items of business disposed of.

The secretary's report for 1930 showed 48 sessions of the school with an aggregate attendance of 10,068. The average enrollment for the four quarters of the year was 238, with the maximum enrollment of 311 attained during the fourth quarter.

Five teachers and officers of the school, one pupil in the young people's division and two in the children's division were credited with a perfect attendance in the report.

Team Defeated
By a 10 to 14 score, the Forest Junction Specialists took their second defeat this season from the Askaton team in the basketball game at Keller's hall here Thursday night. While the locals had the ball in their possession during a goodly portion of the time they lost their ground through inability to shoot baskets during the first half of the game. Askaton led 10 to 2 at the close of the half and each side added only one point during the third quarter. Harold Krautkramer of Wrightstown was the referee.

Though games have still been offered to the Specialists, Thursday evening's game closed basketball activities here at least for the present, the manager, Arthur Stancill, Jr., states. Some difficulties are being encountered in securing Keller's hall here, the former community hall, which is now being partially used as a blacksmith and implement shop.

Ideal for all children because it is pleasant tasting and easy to take—not a gargle. Ask for Thoxine, put up ready for use in 3c, 6c, and $1.00 bottles.
